WHITE DOVE OF PEACE FLUTTERS

Over the Situation in the Balkan States.

DANGER OF EUROPEAN CLASH APPEARS PAST

Actual Negotiations Expected Within a Week.

Dispatches Say the Allies Are in Accord and Servia Guarantees Austria the "Most Favored Treatment"—Bulgars Give Up Plan to Throw Victorious Army into the Capital—Porte Will Make Sacrifice

[BULLETIN]

Belgrade Nov 14—An unconfirmed report was received here today that Adrianople had surrendered to the Bulgarians and Servians investing the city

Powers Will Not Meddle

London Nov 14—A Central News dispatch from Paris says

Information from high diplomatic circles in Paris and Berlin are to the effect that all of the largest European powers have definitely agreed as to the policy they will observe in relation to any further developments in the Balkan situation

These advices are that no matter what action may be taken by the combatants upon the conclusion of the armistice just arranged, none of the large powers will be involved All apprehension of a general conflict has passed

Report Confirmed

London Nov 14—Official confirmation that the Turkish governmen has through Grand Vizier Kiamil Pacha, addressed representations to Czar Ferdinand for an armistice pending peace negotiations was received here today from Constantinople

Peace Is in Sight

London, Nov 14—Peace in the Balkans is at last in sight and danger of a European clash seems to have been averted A private message received here from Constantinople states that the Turkish government has already opened negotiations with the Balkan allies

Turkey through Nazim Pacha the Ottoman minister of war, has appealed to General Savoff the Bulgarian commander at Chatalja, for an eight day armistice General Savoff notified Czar Ferdinand of Turkey's petition and it is believed the armistice will be ordered at once

Belief here is that the war is at an end Turkey has been hopelessly whipped and could not have continued the struggle many more days, military experts say actual peace negotiations will probably be commenced next week

Dispatches from the Balkan and other capitals say that the allies are in accord From the continent came word saying that a more optimistic outlook prevails everywhere The Servian government has given Austro Hungary guarantees that she shall receive the most favored treatment" in the territorial negotiations following the war

A report from the Turkish capital, by way of Vienna, said that pourparlers had already begun at The Porte with M Poppoff first secertary of the Bulgarian legation and M Neradjelitch Bulgarian minister to Turkey acting for the Bulgarian government

From all accounts Czar Ferdinand has given up his determination of throwing his victorious army into the Ottoman capital However, the city may be occupied later by an army made up of Bulgarian Servian Montenegrin and Greek troops as a memory of the joint victory over the Crescent

It is now learned that Musurus Bey Turkish minister of posts and telegraphs who was reported yesterday to be enroute for Paris is really on his way to Sofia as special peace envoy

The Sublime Porte is said to be prepared to make numiliating sacrifices One of these is the withdrawal of the Turkish soldiers from the Chalija lines leaving the city exposed to the allies

Fighting is still going on in western Albania and it may be several days before news of the armistice can be telegraphed to the remote centers

Russia Is in Line

St Petersburg Nov 14—Preparations are being made in official circles for a conference of the powers to be held following the declaration of peace between Turkey and the Balkan allies It is believed here that the negotiations will be opened probably in Paris within a fortnight

Count Witte, who negotiated the Russo Japanese peace convention for Russia in America, will probably represent the St Petersburg government

While peace is believed near, nevertheless Russia is not overlooking the possibility of diplomatic complications, which may threaten another rupture in Europe

Balkan dispatches indicate now that Albania will become an autonomous principality, under the nominal suzerainty of the Turkish sultan, instead of being divided up among the allies

Salonika wil probably be internationalized and Roumania will get a slice of Bulgarian territory for remaining neutral Austria and Servia will probably join hands in the construction of an Adriatic Danube railway and Servia wil be given free commercial use of the Adriatic ports of Durazzo and San Giovanni di Medura

Rejoicing in Sofia

Sofia, Nov 14—News that Turkey is suing for peace caused wild rejoicing throughout this city today It is regarded here, with a large degree of confidence that Bulgaria won the war for the Balkan league

Dispatches from the front indicate that fighting along the Chatalja lines had been suspended, pending the final negotiations for an armistice

Similar word comes from Bulgarian army headquarters at Stara Zagora, relative to the fighting about Adrianople

Premier Guechoff held a number of official conferences, dealing with the exigencies of the situation Bulgaria's claims upon Turkey had been drawn up beforehand These included territorial acquisition from the southern frontier of Bulgaria to the Aegean sea and the Sea of Marmora

Another Assault Reported

Sofia, Nov 14—The Bulgarian army outside of Constantinople is making a final assault upon the Chatalja forts according to reports from the front today This intelligence was received simultaneously with dispatches that provisional arrangements for an armistice had been made by Turkey, and created considerable confusion in the public mind as to the real situation at the battlefront Fighting is also in progress around Adrianople, it is said

The Turks are reported to have made another desperate sortie against the Turkish works at the junction of the Arda and Maritza rivers, which are now held by Bulgarians As the artillery from the forts command the inner defenses of the city, the Turks fought desperately to capture them The Bulgarians now hold four forts outside Adrianople, frim which the second line works are being shelled

Servians Make Attack.

Nish, Servia, Nov 14—A Servian attack has begun upon the Turkish city of Monastir according to a dispatch received here today from staff headquarters at Uskub The city is defended by the Fifth, Sixth and Seventh army corps of the Turkish army of Albania, under General Zekki Pacha

Crown Prince Alexander, commander of the Servians, is reported to have been taken sick or wounded and to have left the front for Prilep for treatment

Soldiers Are Drowned

Bucharest, Roumania, Nov. 14—Forty-four soldiers were drowned by the swamping of a boat on the Danube river near Calarashi today

Of the forty-nine sailors in the the boat at the time of the accident but five were saved

Bourses Are Stronger

Paris, Nov 14—The continental bourses today reflected a strong and favorable tone, as a result of the prospects for immediate peace in the Balkans, without resultant European entanglements

Atrocities Reported

Athens Nov 14—Fresh details of atrocities by Bashi Bazouks and Albanians throughout Epirus during the retreat of the Turkish army are coming in One detachment pillaged thirty-one villages in the Janina district and burned eleven villages in the Malkassa district

The few inhabitants who escaped, fled to the mountain caves Many refugees were found starved to death The Christian residents were subjected to the cruelest barbarities

Both Sides Guilty

Berlin, Nov 14—The Bulgarians as well as the Turks have been guilty of barbarities in the Balkan war, according to a dispatch from the correspondent of the Vossische Zeitung today He related that, after the battle of Kirk Kilesseh, the victorious Bulgars beheaded Turkish dead and dying and carried the human heads upon their bayonets

Cholera Is Raging

Constantinople via Vienna, Nov 14—There are 2,000 cases of cholera in the Turkish camp at Chatalja, forty per cent of which are fatal and hundreds of other cases are breaking out daily among the natives and refugees in the stamboul section. The deaths will run into many thousands before the disease is stamped out.

New Yorker Is Caught with Her Jewels on Him.

Twenty-Seven-Year-Old Wife of Seventy-Six-Year-Old Man Loses Life in Accident—$6 000 Worth of Jewels Taken—Old Man Doesn't Know Wife Is Riding—Accused Man Is Silent

New York Nov 14—Charged with homicide and grand larceny of $6,000 worth of jewels Michael Rosenthal, a salesman was arrested today as the result of an automobile smash up in which his companion Mrs Anderson Reid the twenty-seven year old wife of a seventy-six-year-old Brooklyn candy manufacturer was killed The auto rolled over a 150-foot embankment

Rosenthal refused to discuss the accident when locked up in the New Jersey Avenue police station and later he was taken before Magistrate Nash for arraignment with his lips still sealed

The authorities declare that, when arrested Rosenthal had in his possession a chamois bag containing the jewels which had hung around Mrs Reid's neck, appended from a pink ribbon

When the detectives appealed to the aged husband of the young woman, he said he didn't know his wife was autoing at the time of her death and he had never heard of Rosenthal

The authorities declared there were others in the party, whom they hope to catch later

After hearing the evidence against Rosenthal Magistrate Nash decided that it was insufficient to hold the defendant and he was discharged

John Rourke another member of the party who had been arrested by the police was also discharged by Magistrate Nash, when he was arraigned charged with complicity in homicide

CONTINUES HIS CRIME RECITAL

Ortie McManigal Tells Jury About More Jobs.

RECALLS TALK WITH PRESIDENT OF UNION

In Which Mr. Ryan Complains About the Expense.

States Star Witness Says the Labor Leader Gives McNamara Roast Because McManigal Goes To See Him—Ryan Says He Is Not Guilty and Has No Knowledge of the Conspiracy.

Indianapolis, Nov 14—A conversation between President Ryan, of the Ironworkers on trial, and Ortie McManigal, arch-dynamiter, at headquarters here in August 1910, relative to McManigal's class of work, was recalled by McManigal on the witness stand in the dynamite conspiracy case in federal court here this forenoon

Ryan says he is not guilty, and that he had no knowledge of the dynamite conspiracy

That the defendant, Ed Smythe, took him to the Lucas Bridge and Iron company's plant at Peoria, Illinois, and showed him where he wanted an explosion placed, was the first testimony of McManigal, the government's star witness, today.

McManigal dynamited this plant as per Smythe's instructions, the night of September 4, 1910 The same night McManigal testified he also dynamited material of the McClintic-Marshall company, which he says was pointed out to him by Smythe, in the yards of the Peoria & Pekin Union railway in East Peoria After Smythe pointed out this work, McManigal said he came back to Indianapolis and went to Ironworkers' headquarters to see McNamara, but saw President Ryan during McNamara's absence

'Ryan," said McManigal, "took me into his private office and closed the door I asked about J J and Ryan said he did not know where he was. I showed Ryan a copy of a Kansas City paper, showing the explosion there Ryan said he had seen it and got out of humor and said

Ryan Out of Humor.

" 'I want you fellows to quit running into this office all the time Besides that, you don't change your appearances often enough Any one who has seen you once would know you Besides that, you fellows want to quit running around the country in rigs and automobiles It costs too much money'

I told Ryan I had not done that and then I told him about my bad luck at Kansas City I then went away and my next meeting was with J J McNamara, August 26 1910

I told McNamara I had talked to Ryan and I J said, 'Yes, and Ryan gave me hell about you being up here' I said Ryan gave me the cold shoulder when he met me on the street and McNamara said maybe others could explain their business with Ryan better than I could I said I guessed so

McNamara told me to go to Albany that afternoon and see S E Kiser about some 'soup' McNamara said he was out of soup and I must get some I went to Albany and met Charles Morehart and arranged to buy 120 quarts of nitroglycerine at $1 60 a quart I told him I wanted it for George J Clark, of Indianapolis"

'I returned to Indianapolis and McNamara took me to the Columbia National bank and gave me $300 with which to pay for the soup, when I got the soup Monday morning After McNamara and I got eighty quarts into the vault on the fifth boor McNamara said

Eighty Quarts of Soup.

' Eighty Holy smoke If that stuff exploded it would blow the top of the monument off I told him if he was in his office it would blow the top of his head off McNamara said he would start me to Peoria with forty quarts of soup to blow hell out of things over there He said he wanted seven explosions to come off over there at the same time or one after the other

About the first of September, 1910 I took the soup and went to Peoria and Smythe met me I met Smythe in the orchard where we had buried the soup He was wringing wet I asked him if he'd swam the river He said he had seen a man come down the tracks he didn't want to meet so he took a run around through the cornfield

I reached for my pocketbook to pay him for the cans and it was gone It had $400 in it McNamara had paid me I rushed back to the hotel and the landlady had it I went back to Smythe and he asked me when the explosion was coming off I told him it would come off that night and for him to arrange an alibi

THE ANSWER GIVEN.

By William T. Ellis.

The International Sunday-School Lesson for November 17 Is, "The Great Question." Mark 8:27-9:1.

The guns have been roaring on the Balkan peninsula for a few weeks past. Most persons in this western world are befuddled as to the actual reason. Fundamentally these guns are making answer to "the great question" which the present Sunday-School lesson asks. The Christian allies are thundering in dread gunpowder tones, "Thou art the Christ," —Thou, and not Mohammed. The issue that has brought on this long expected war is at root the question of the place of Christ in life. Shall the Carpenter be sovereign or the camel-driver? May Moselm continue to oppose Christian?

Vivid and near as this supreme question of life is made by the war in Europe, it is not singular for it thus to be actualized. This is the issue which has been dividing human society, and creating wars and conflict, ever since the gentle Galilean Peasant trod the pleasant fields of Palestine. Walking close by every man and nation, and rising to assert itself at the most unexpected moment, is this questin of questions, which no man can answer for another and which no man can escape for himself—"Whom say ye that I am?"

Getting Down to Basis.

A town meeting is called to consider an important and immediate issue, and then it fritters its opportunity away in irrelevant questions and discussions. This is so with almost every gathering. Lying on the surface of this tragic conference at Caesarea Phillippi, which we study today, are many subjects for discussion. Yet at bed rock the issue is wholly one of the character and mission of Christ. Was He the Messiah, the One long prophesied and expected?

The lieutenants of Jesus reported to their leader the common opinion of their day and world. He was reputed by one party, they said, to be the Baptist; another declared that He was Elijah come again: others contended that He was Jeremiah in the flesh. All conceded Him an extraordinary place. This was the opinion of the scholars and of the sophisticated men of the time. The world's best wisdom agreed that Jesus was not like other men: and the most grudging of verdicts in the centuries since grants Him at least this much.

Not flattered, but rather disheartened by this report, Jesus turned from the wisdom of the wise to the simple faith of His own friends. Then, as now, the eyes of the heart had clearest vision. Lowly belief saw further than scholarly skepticism. Therefore Peter's prompt reply rang boldly out, thrilling the heart of the lonely Leader, who in this hour especially needed the comfort of being understood and trusted, "Thou art the Christ." With all his faults, Peter had that spiritual faculty which discerns the inwardness of truth. His was elemental wisdom.

That same wisdom discerns Christ standing at the cross-roads of time, awaiting the judgment of men upon Himself, by which judgment men themselves are to be judged.

A Great Soul's Suffering.

Lifting its snow-crowned head in grandeur so high that it dominates the entire region of Palestine from Jerusalem north, stands Mt. Hermon, strong in its majesty and beauty. To the solitude and strength of this mountain Jesus had taken His friends. At its foot, in or near Caesarea Phillippi, He underwent this experience which some writers have called the "passion of the north." Here He faced the question of what He had come into the world for and how far the world recognized Him and His mission. Into every strong life there come these experiences, when the soul is searched to its depth, and the eternal "why?" is fronted in all its solemnity.

Suffering by anticipation is keenest pain. It is not the shock of the bullet in the body, but the thought of it that hurts the more. Jesus underwent His Calvary in spirit beneath the shadow of Mt. Hermon. What this crisis of self-examination and of realized public appraisal meant to Him we can not understand. We know that His soul was exceeding sorrowful. Out of the deeps of this hour flowed the sublime teaching of self-renunciation—here Christ lifted up the cross upon which He was later to be lifted.

A Friends' Foolish Counsel.

Nobody suffers alone. We are tied together in the bundle of life, for weal or for woe. The sharpest thorn in the Leader's crown of sorrow was the knowledge of the suffering of His disciples. To prepare them for what lay before them Jesus "began to teach them, that the Son of Man must suffer many things and be rejected by the elders and the chief priests and the scribes and be killed, and after three days rise again." Without figure of speech and with utmost directness and plainess He told these men who were looking forward to earthly crowns that the world had for them nothing better than crosses.

At this point the mistake which is being made every day by fond parents and friends was made by impulsive Peter. He wanted to spare his dear Master the suffering which Jesus had indicated. Of course he was short-sighted and foolish. The Peter plan is responsible for thousands of sons and daughters who have come to man's estate unfit for life's burdens. Parents have spared children hardship to the softening of their soul fibre. Pedagogy, philosophy and religion all unite in the admonition to parents to teach their children to endure hardness. No price of suffering is too great to pay for highest usefulness. We cannot escape the profound truth that ability to serve mankind in loftiest ways always costs tears and bloody sweat.

Something of shock comes to us as we find the gentle Master saying sharply to the man whose confession a short time earlier had been awarded the keys of heaven, "Get thee behind me, Satan." Whatever leads one aside from his truest destiny is of the evil one. One of the worst of all mistakes in life is to seek the easy way. The temptation to escape the burdens and cares and hardships of life by shirking clear duty is a temptation from Satan himself, even though it come in the loving solicitude of parent or wife or nearest friend.

"The Trade Mark of Christianity."

A New York advertising man, Mr. Herbert Houston, made one of the opening addresses of the Dallas advertising men's convention, wherein he spoke of the cross as "the trade mark of Christianity." That was a happy phrase, and more. It plows deep into the soil of the mind. The genuine article is always known by its trade mark. True Christianity never lacks the cross. The followers of the Christ all wear His brand; as Paul says, "I bear in my body the brand marks of the Lord Jesus." In the words of our lesson, Jesus Himself says, "If any man would come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me."

The size of a human soul is measured by its capacity for suffering. The greatest saints have been those to who mthe cross was the most real experience. That symbol of surrender and of suffering and of sacrifice and of service is more than a symbol: it is a life reality. Out of the depths of His own agony in the "passion of the north," Jesus delivers to humanity this great truth of the life spent in suffering and in service. What else than this is the deepest need of our day—men and woman who will lose their lives for the world's sake, and who will pour out their souls unto death, and who are crucified with Christ, that the world may have the life of Chirst? In this vicariousness is victory.

VIOLATES GAME LAW AND PAYS FINE MONDAY

Ora Brady Is Captured by Game Warden Neimeyer.

Monday, Ora Brady pleaded guily to violating the game laws and was fined $25 and costs by Justice Chas. E. Gompf. The maximum penalty for this offense is $200 and costs. He settled.

Brady's arrest was brought about by Deputy Game Warden C. Neimeyer of Prospect, who declares the arrest is only a warning to others. The next man caught violating the game laws will not be let off as easily as Brady, who was charged with shooting a rabbit, Sunday, and before November 15, when the rabbit and quail hunting season will open. The deputy game warden caught him in the act and, following his arrest, confiscated his game and his shotgun. After conferring with State Game Warden John C. Speaks over the telephone, Monday, the gun was given back to Brady. At the time of Brady's arrest he was accompanied by three companions.

MOTORCYCLIST IS FATALLY INJURED

Harley V. Oborn Has Skull Fractured in Five Places.

Harley V. Oborn, of Bucyrus, the twenty-two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Oborn, who formerly lived near Meeker in Salt Rock township, was fatally hurt in a motorcycle accident at Bucyrus, Sunday afternoon about 4:30 o'clock. Young Oborn was racing with a companion when the front fork of his motorcycle broke and he was thrown a distance of forty feet, lighting on his head. His skull was fractured in five places and his right arm was broken at the wrist.

The unfortunate man was taken to the Crawford County hospital. The attending surgeons hold out no hopes for his recovery.

ASSIGNMENTS IN THE COMMON PLEAS COURT

Cases Set Down for Trial by Jury Soon.

THE MATTER OF FARRELL AGAINST JOHN HERR

Court Enters a Judgment for the Plaintiff—Civil Action of Lory W. Phelps Against Chicago & Erie Is Dismissed at Costs of Plaintiff. Other Court Notes.

Friday, Judge William E. Scofield assigned for trial the following jury cases:

November 18—State against England.

November 19—Haner against the Marion Steam Shovel company.

November 21—Tallman against Beaver.

November 22—Strelitz against Shetterly brothers.

November 25—Wilson against the Ohio Wetsern Lime company.

November 26—Clark, administrator, against the Chicago & Erie railroad company.

In the civil action of Mary Elizabeth Farrell against John Herr and others, Friday, Judge Scofield entered a finding and judgment by consent for the plaintiff and against the defendants.

In the suit of Louise Wilson against James Robinson, the defendant, November 8, through Attorney J. Wilbur Jacoby, filed an answer and cross-petition. He asks that he be given judgment for $8.16, an amount due him on an account for groceries, and that the petition of the plaintiff be dismissed.

The civil action of Lory W. Phelps against the Chicago & Erie Railway company has been dismissed at the costs of the plaintiff.

In the partition suit of Sebastian Keil against Elizabeth Keil and others, November 8, Judge Scofield found for the parties in accordance with the prayer of the petition. He granted a decree of partition and named William Imbody, George H. Dutton and Charles C. Fisher as commissioners.

Lulu Cosgrove, through DeGolley & DeGolley, Saturday, brought an action for a divorce from George Cosgrove, to whom she was married March 14, 1904. She charges gross neglect of duty and extreme cruelty. She says he threatened to kill her, and thus placed her "in great fear and making her life unbearable." She also charges him with consorting with lewd women. She asks a divorce and reasonable alimony.

Saturday, through Attorney H. Edmund Hill, Serepta L. Sullivan brought suit for a divorce from Chester Sullivan, formerly employed by the Erie Railroad company as a car inspector. She charges failure to provide and gross neglect of duty. At the time of their marriage, May 11, 1912, she says he misrepresented his station in life, claiming to be a man of integrity and honesty and when in truth, she says, he was not. The action was brought by her father, she being only seventeen years old.

The girl-bride says her husband was arrested on a larceny charge and was convicted in Charles E. Gompf's court for stealing from the Erie Railroad company when employed as a car inspector. She asks restoration to her maiden name of Baker and for an injunction restraining him from drawing his money from the railroad. The railroad company is made a party defendant for that reason. An injunction was granted as prayed for by the plaintiff.

In the suit of Emma F. Raymond against C. Hartman Raymond and others, the defendants, Frank A Huber and John A. Schroeter, as executors of the estate of Edward Huber, and John J. Crawley and Jacob Miller, have filed their answer and cross-petition. The defendants set up a mortgage claim of $325.08, with six per cent. interest from October 18, 1912, against the property described in the petition.

In the suit of Louise Wilson against James Robinson, the plaintiff, through Attorney Louis E. Meyers, has filed a reply to the defendant's answer and cross-petition, setting up a general denial.

Wesley Banks, colored, indicted for assaulting one Charles Busard, was arraigned before Judge William E. Scofield, Saturday, and pleaded guilty. He was sentenced to serve a sentence of thirty days in jail, but Judge Scofield suspended the sentence so that Banks could go to work and support his little children. A recommendation of mercy was made to the court by the infirmary directors, who have been supporting the family during the time Banks has been in jail.

After long delay, the Erie railroad company has paid $10,000 judgment obtained by R. L. Holland against it for the loss of a leg. The settlement was made, Saturday, and the records in the office of County Clerk W. W. Klinefelter disclose that the sum of $12,100 was paid over to Holland's attorneys, Scofield & Durfee and Grant E. Mouser, of Marion, and Harry M. Quigley, of Cincinnati. This includes the $10,000 judgment, together with interest from the beginning of the May term of court, 1909. The railroad also paid the court costs, amounting to $79,92. It paid its own witnesses, whose fees amounted to $44.

Of the $12,100 paid over by the railroad company to Holland's attorneys, Holland received $7,800 and his attorneys received the balance.

Saturday afternoon, W. L. Lucas, through Carhart & Warner, brought an action against the Marion Telephone company for $100 damages. This is a case appealed from the docket of Justice Charles W. Haberman. Lucas, a milk dealer, claims that his horse ran away as a result of being frightened by one of the Telephone company's employes on a motorcycle.

Alleging that his wife, Jennie May, served a sentence in the workhouse for immorality, and that she abandoned him and their children, William Zattau, through Attorney Louis E. Myers, brought an action for a divorce, Saturday afternoon. He asks for an absolute divorce and custody of their three children. He was married to the defendant, June 29, 1899.

Monday morning, Oswald Wollenweber was named as receiver for the Marion Woodworking company, capitalized at $10,000, with a factory on Edwards street. The appointment was made upon the application of James B., John W. and Otto Peoples, who own $1,475 worth of the company's stock and who set up that the corporation is insolvent and unable to meet its obligations without court protection.

Mr. Wollenweber was named as receiver to take charge of the company's assets and to continue the business, or to sell the assets and apply to the payment of debts.

The Marion Woodworking company was organized March 15, 1912. Its assets, consist of tools, machinery and material used in the construction of swings, chairs, etc. As a going concern the equipment mentioned is declared to be valuable, but if the plant is closed the property would be valueless, it is asserted. W. J. Gordon, Joseph Slanser and S. H. DeLong were named as appraisers.

The application for a receiver was made through Attorney Hoke W. Donithen.

Monday, Common Pleas Judge William E. Scofield certified a list of names to the United States court in Toledo for federal jury service.

Monday, Judge Scofield confirmed the sale of an eighty-acre tract, located in Grand Prairie township, to Emanuel Drake, in the partition suit of Thomas W. Markey against Nellie Mercer and others. He ordered the proceeds distributeed. A deed to the purchaser was also ordered.

The suit of Basil Ridgway and others against William C. Thew, has been dismissed without prejudice at the plaintiff's costs. This is an action wherein the plaintiff sought to recover $200 judgment for an electric generator.

Monday, in the divorce suit of Serepta L. Sullivan, an infant, by William E. Baker, her father, against Chester I. Sullivan, the defendant, through Mouser & Moloney, filed an answer, setting up a general denial and asking that his wife's petition be dismissed,

AN INTERESTING TALK ON TURKISH SITUATION

Rev. Marcellus Bowen Fears a Massacre Soon.

HE HAS A DAUGHTER IN CONSTANTINOPLE

Trouble Brews in the Turkish Capital Ever Since the Revolution of Four Years Ago—Rev. Mr. Bowen Thinks the War Will Be Settled Without Intervention of Powers.

Rev Marcellus Bowen, Mediterranean Levant, head of the American Bible society's agency in Bulgaria, Turkey, Egypt and the Soudan, with headquarters in Constantinople, who is visiting Marion relatives, greatly fears a massacre in Constantinople before the arrival of American gunboats despatched to the scene. He has a daughter, Mrs. Frank Ferguson, wife of an English postal official, and two grandchildren in Constantinople, where already the great guns of the Bulgarians are thundering in the ears of the city's residents.

Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Bowen left Constantinople the end of last May, traveling in Persia, through Russia and over the continent to London, where they sailed for New York city. Mrs. Bowen is now visiting New England relatives.

At the time of leaving Constantinople, Rev. Mr. Bowen says that trouble had been anticipated there. Trouble, he says, has been brewing ever since the Turkish revolution of four years ago. The feeling in the Balkan states has been very intense because of the Turkish treatment of the Christian races, he says. While the Christians in Turkey are Turkish subjects they are at the same time compatriots of Bulgaria and other Balkan states.

Some Observations.

As a keen observer of events in the theater of war because of a residence of many years in the capital city, Mr Bowen does not believe that the powers will have a voice in the settlement of the trouble. He thinks the war will be ended with negotiations between the sublime porte and the Bulgars without the powers' aid.

"If there is any one power that may interfere it would be Russia, and we all hope it may never be Russia," he said. He added that the Bear had long had its eyes on the country and looked to its seizure for an outlet from the Black Sea through the Dardanelles. Russia will insist that the Dardanelles be opened and remain neutral to commerce and the fleets of the world, in the event of intervention. However, Mr Bowen has lost faith in the ability of any of the powers to intervene. The Balkan league, he says, has shown itself quite unwilling to be controlled.

Europe Surprised.

"The independence of spirit of the Balkan states." Mr. Bowen said, "was a surprise to all Europe, and I doubt very much whether the powers will be able to interfere with the disposition of European Turkey."

Rev. Mr. Bowen's view of the situation is that Constantinople and the Dardanelles will be left free, and no one power will thus have control. That is the only fair and equitable adjustment of the spoils of the war, and there would be no conflict between the powers, he points out.

"The best friends of the Young Turks have been obliged to acknowledge the loss of faith in them because of the unjust, unfair treatment by them of the Christian races," declared Rev. Mr. Bowen. "Their greatest handicap is the attempt to combine the government with Mohammedanism in state religion. Mohammedanism may grow and flourish under liberable government, but liberal government and Mohammedanism are absolutely incompatible. I can not conceive of the actual expulsion of Mohammedanism from Turkey, for there are millions of Mohammedans in Turkey, but the Turks will be compelled to deal with their subjects in Asia Minor more humanely."

Is Greatly Alarmed.

Rev. Mr. Bowen is greatly alarmed over the possibility of a massacre in Constantinople, but believes that the presence of warships will have a tendency to prevent this. Then too, he says, the Turkish officials in Constantinople are interested in the suppression of uprisings because their fate in Asia Minor will depend upon their actions. The roughs of the capital city, he says, will be cowed by the presence of foreign gunboats. "They respect the powers," he said, "and are almost in hiding at this time. More trouble may be expected in the interior than in the seaport towns."

Rev. and Mrs. Bowen expect to sail for Constantinople about November 30, if the war situation does not prevent.

THE COMMISSIONER HOLDS FINAL HEARING

Receivers of the C., M. & B. Give Their Testimony.

The final hearing in the matter of the Columbus, Marion & Bucyrus Railway company was held before Master Commissioner James H. Eymon in the common pleas court-room Monday afternoon. Receivers George Whysall and Fred E. Guthery testified in an effort to deterine the corporation's assets. Receiver Guthery read at considerable length in the record and examined Receiver Whysall, who in answer to a query with regard to his knowledge of the road's assets, submitted a printed list of the property. He afterward testified with regard to the number of receivers' certificates paid and still outstanding, his statement of facts being substantially the same as was recently published in the Star.

Commissioner Eymon announced that his report probably will be filed some time this week.

A LARGE NEW BARN DESTROYED BY FIRE

Building Filled with Hay, Corn and Harness.

The large new barn of the Evans Lime & Stone company, located just west of the Hocking Valley tracks near the company's quarters, was totally destroyed by fire shortly before 2 Friday afternoon. Before the fire was discovered, it had gained such headway that the efforts of the laborers to extinguish the blaze were futile. The high wind caused the fire to spread rapidly and a call was sent to the central fire station, but by the time the firemen reached the scene on the motor engine, the barn was almost to the ground. The barn was filled with hay, corn and harness, all of which was consumed by the flames. The fire is supposed to have had its origin from a spark from a Hocking Valley train. The loss could not be estimated.

ALLEN CORBIN FINED BY JUSTICE GOMPF

Also Given Suspended Sentence to the Workhouse.

Allen Corbin, a plasterer, pleaded guilty to a charge of abusing his wife in the court of Justice Charles E. Gompf, October 8, and was fined five dollars and costs and sentenced to ninety days in the workhouse. Corbin's plea for clemency was that he was intoxicated and did not realize what he was doing at the time. Corbin choked his wife and drove her from their home on Latourette street.

Friday morning, Constable James F. Ullom arrested Corbin at his home. The prisoner arranged to pay the fine and costs and Justice Gompf suspended the sentence, but said he would send him to jail until after Sunday so that he could sober up. Corbin was prosecuted by J. W. Ulsh, humane officer.

AUDITOR RECEIVES LETTER OF WARNING

Imposters Are Working the County Library Game.

County Auditor Jay Spaulding has received a letter from J. H. Newman, state librarian, who warns him against imposters seeking to impose on commissioners in counties where there is a prospect of establishing county libaries. These imposters, according to the state librarian, attempts to make the commissioners believe that it will be necessary to employ an organizer to help organize the library, if a library is instituted. However, Marion county commisisoners say that they are not worried, because the organization of a county library is not contemplated here.

Wager Is Paid.

An election wager was paid off Friday night, by Joseph Wood. He wagered Levi Troupe that President Taft would come in second. Troupe said that Roosevelt would get second place. The wager was paid off by the loser wheeling the winner uptown in a wheelbarrow.

MOTORCYCLE RIDER IS KILLED SUNDAY

Zure D. Drake Speeds to Death on Superior Street.

CRASHES AGAINST BOLANDER PORCH

Ribs Are Fractured and Puncture Victim's Lungs—Loses Control of Machine in Avoiding Collision with a Buggy—Young Man Dies at Home of His Grandmother.

When speeding his twin Indian motorcycle north on Prospect street, Sunday afternoon about 4 o'clock, Zure D. Drake, twenty-three years old, ran on the sidewalk at Superior street to avoid collision with a buggy, lost complete control of his machine, and sustained mortal injuries by being hurled against the porch of the William Bolander home, No. 658 south Prospect street.

Young Drake died at the home of Mrs. Peter Boger, two hours and a half after the accident.

Drake was speeding around the curve at McKinley lake, enroute home from Prospect. He did not have time to stop and ran the chance of running on the sidewalk off Superior street. That was his only way to avoid collision with the approaching rig. But in the excitement he lost control and went to his death.

Drake was hurled from his machine, his body striking one of the veranda pillars at the Bolander home, tearing the pillar from its fastenings. His ribs were crushed and his lungs punctured by them.

The young man was carried into the Bolander home, where Drs. H. J. Lower, A. Rhu and H. L. Uhler examined his injuries. Drake recovered consciousness long enough to say that he could not breath. He was taken to the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Peter Boger, of Oak street, in the Hess & Markert ambulance. The direct cause of death was hemorrhage of the lungs.

The fatal accident was Drake's fourth serious motorcycle mishap. Last summer, he rode to Cleveland, Buffalo and Niagara Falls and on the trip had his wheel smashed sustaining injuries that laid him up for some time. Drake was a silk weaver, and was quite well known. He is a son of Mrs. Martha Connell, residing at No. 3336 Oak street, and the only support of his widowed mother. The latter feared her son would be badly injured or killed and frequently counseled him to be careful.

The funeral services were held at the Oak street residence, Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. George M. Rourke officiating.

COUNTY MUST BUY ITS GOODS OF THE STATE

Law as to Supplies for Institutions of County.

NOTICE RECEIVED BY THE COMMISSIONERS

Such Goods as Are Manufactured in the Prisons Are To Be Used in the Children's Home and in the County Infirmary—Labor Unions Enter Protest Against New Law.

The county commissioners have received from the state board of administration a communication notifying them that Section 1847, of the general code, provides that all supplies needed for public buildings, offices and institutions must be purchased from the state when the supplies needed are manufactured by the state.

In this connection, the board of administration notified the commissioners that, on and after January 1, 1913, the Ohio state reformatory in Mansfield will be prepared to manufacture all shoes and men's clothing required at the county infirmary and the Waddel Children's home.

Under the new law, the latter points out, the commissioners will be expected to purchase such supplies from the Mansfield reformatory. This is made compulsory, unless the reformatory gives notice it can not furnish what is wanted within thirty days.

Violation of the law is punishable by a fine of $25 for the first offense and $100 for each subsequent offense.

On the first of the new year, as is well known, the county commissioners will take charge of the county infirmary, the board of directors of that institution having been legislated out of office. The new order means that the law providing for the use of reformatory and prison made goods will be put in force at once.

A big protest from labor unions all over the state is expected, but, under the law, which was passed by the last session of the general assembly, nothing can be done save carry it out.

Catches Big Bass.

C. H. Bowers, of Columbus, Wednesday afternoon, of last week coaxed the largest small-mouthed bass ever caught in this vicinity into captivity, and now he is showing the singed weight card of the fish to show that it weighed 6¾ pounds. The bass was caught above Dublin, in the Scioto river, at a point about a mile south of the Powell bridge.

SUNFLOWERS GROWN IN SOUTH CAROLINA

No Better Feed for Fowls Can Be Produced.

Farmer J. H. Wall of Dunbarton showed us on Friday a sunflower measuring fourteen inches in diameter and chock full of seed in purfectly curved rows. It was of the type grown in Russia, where the seeds are eaten as peanuts in this country. They also contain a fine oil. This sort bears only one flower, but it is a whopper, growing on the top of the stalk. The seeds were taken from the chicken feed bought by Mr. Wall and planted near the house, where the chickens had eaten two or three plantings of corn. For several weeks Mrs. Wall,s chickens had been feasting on the oilfull seed and are happy and healthy on such fattening food, says the Barnwell People.

A while ago a colored subscriber living near Buford's bridge on a farm noted for regular chill and fever visitations planted a row of sunflowers around his cabin and he told us that since there had not been a case of chill and fever in his family. Cattle are very fond of the leaves and stalks when tender. No better feed for fowls can be grown.

MUST SERVE SIX YEARS IN A FEDERAL PRISON

Giuseppe Messaline Found Guilty of Charges.

Giuseppe Messaline, of Kent, who was arrested by the federal authorities recently on a charge of passing counterfeit dollars at Galion, and who reaped quite a harvest by his work, has been found guilty in the federal court in Cleveland and sentenced to serve six years in the prison at Ft. Leavenworth, Kansas.

In the course of his trial, Messaline went on the witness stand for himself, but made a very poor witness. He admitted having been held as a suspect in a murder case at Allegheny, Pennsylvania, and having served two years of a four-year sentence in Ohio for shooting with intent to kill

IS NOT ANXIOUS TO RECEIVE THE TAXES

Tax Duplicate Delayed by the Recent Election.

County Treasurer Robert S. Dombaugh announces that he is not anxious that taxes be paid before December 1. As yet, he says, the complete duplicate has not been turned over to him by the auditor, only one section being received by him. The work of "setting taxes" could not be commenced earlier this year because of the election to decide the agricultural tax for the building of a grandstand and an auditorium at the fairground. Just as soon as it became known that this did not carry, County Auditor Jay Spaulding at once began work on the duplicate, and this will be turned over to Treasurer Dombaugh in sections.

The short time between an election and the date of the collection of taxes is one of the inconveniences of the Smith one-per-cent. law that Treasurer Dombaugh and Auditor Spaulding will have to put up with every time there is an election in November to decide an extra tax.

GEORGE RODOFLO DIES AS RESULT OF INJURIES

Passes Away in City Hospital Saturday Evening.

Nineteen-year-old George Rodolfo, who had his eyes blown out and was otherwise injured by a dynamite explosion at one of the quarries of the Ohio & Western Lime company, Saturday morning, died at the Marion City hospital, Saturday evening about 6:30 o'clock. He regained consciousness before he died and talked to several of his Italian acquaintances, who called at the hospital. He told them that he had accidentally struck a dynamite cap with a pick. He did not know it was there, he said.

Young Rodolfo had been in this country only a short time, and leaves a father and mother and several brothers and sisters in the old country

Funeral services were held at St. Mary's church, Monday, at 10 o'clock, Rev. Father Joseph M. Denning officiating. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery.

RICHARD O'DONNELL TUBERCULOSIS VICTIM

Passes Away After an Illness of About One Year.

Richard O'Donnell, forty-seven years old, died of tuberculosis at the home of his mother, Mrs Margaret O'Donnell, No. 2 Campbell street, Sunday night at 11 o'clock. He had been ill one year.

Mr. O'Donnell was born and raised in Marion. His father was the late John O'Donnell. The deceased was a boilermaker by trade, and well known throughout the city. His mother and the following brothers and sisters survive:

Mrs. John St. Germain, Mary and Anna O'Donnell, John, George and Patrick O'Donnell.

The funeral services were held at St. Mary's church, Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock, Rev. Father Joseph Denning officiating. Interment was made in the St. Mary's cemetery.

Overcome by Gas.

Harry, the ten-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Brookshire, of Olney avenue, was almost asphyxiated by gas at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon while taking a bath. A physician was immediately summoned and the child was given restoratives. He will recover.

LOCAL JUSTICES ARE INTERESTED IN OPINION

Attorney General Is of Opinion Office Is Abolished.

CAN NOT CHANGE THE EFFECT OF AMENDMENT

Attorney General Hogan Gives an Unofficial Opinion and Will Go into the Question More Deeply. Will Discuss Matter with Some of the Legal Lights of Convention.

Justice Charles E. Gompf, secretary of the Ohio association of justices, and other Marion county justices are deeply interested in the unoffical opinion of Attorney General Timothy S. Hogan, who holds that the charter clause ignoring justices of the peace abolishes their offices.

Attorney General Hogan's announced unofficial opinion practically is the same as that of Judge Caleb H. Norris, of Marion, whose opinion, expressed in an interview with a reporter for the Star, was published some time before the constitutional election.

After studying the amendment, Attorney General Hogan gave it as his unofficial opinion that, unwittingly or not, the constitutional convention in adopting a resolution declaring it to have been its intention not to abolish justice of the peace courts, could not change the effect of the amendment itself as ratified by the people.

Under the old constitution courts of justices of the peace were recognized as constitutional offices, while under the new constitution they are creative, specific mention of them being omitted.

It is the contention of the attorney general that this omission, in effect, is equivalent to abolition of these courts, as Judge Norris so clearly pointed out at the time, until and unless they shall be created again by a special act of the legislature.

Before giving an official opinion in the matter, however, Attorney General Hogan, so he has informed representatives of the justices' association, will go into the question more fully and discuss it with some of the legal lights of the constitutional convention, of which Judge Norris is generally regarded as one of the heavyweights.

POLICE COURT.

With the filing of affidavits against Geer Brothers, who conduct a saloon on south Main street, a general cleaning up of the city has been ordered by Mayor Walters, and is being carried out by the police department. According to the mayor's orders, the police are to be vigilant to see that the gambling places are closed. The ban on gambling in every form has been put on by the mayor, and the police will take every step to carry ont his orders.

The owners of slot machines were notified, Saturday, that the machines would not be tolerated any more, and the owners of the machines were not only ordered to stop their use, but to have them removed from the places of business. The mistresses and inmates of houses of ill-repute were given orders to discontinue the business and leave the city by 7 Monday night. In making the cleaning up, the mayor ordered the officers to see that no labor was performed on the streets of the city on Sunday. The mayor stated, Monday morning, that he would make every effort to make Marion a clean city, and that any violator of his orders would be severely dealt with.

Saturday evening, Lewis Geer appeared before the mayor to answer to the charge filed against him by Albert J. Lane, a detective from the Ohio Brewers' Vigilance bureau, charging him with violation of the Sunday-closing law. Geer entered a plea of not guilty to the charge, and his hearing was set for Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. He furnished a bond of $200 for his appearance at that time. Four other affidavits have been filed against Gear Brothers, while it was stated Monday that there were over forty affidavits to be served against other saloonists of the city charging similar offenses.

In referring to the filing of the affidavits against Geer Brothers, in Saturday's Star, an error was made in the statement that the saloon is owned by a Columbus brewery, no brewery having an interest in the place.

A man's relations seldom bother him if he is poorer than they are.

LET US SHOW APPRECIATION NOW.

The Hon. James Bryce, British ambassador to the United States, has resigned. Mr. Bryce is seventy-four years of age, and desires to devote the remainder of his days to his chosen pursuits. It comes as a shock to learn that the distinguished gentleman has passed the age of the Psalmist's limit. He has been so alert, so vigorous, so full of the zest of living, that, in spite of his grey hairs and his achievements, we have not thought of him as an old man It is but a few weeks ago we read of his trip as a pasesnger in an aeroplane flight. For more than five years, Mr. Bryce has represented his country at Washington and has had undiminished popularity and respect. He has been tactful and efficient, even though it was a period unmarked by any momentous questions coming to disturb the relations of the two governments. His position was established long before he came among us, for he was the author of the most authoritative and masterly work upon the American constitution and the government which had developed under it. He is perhaps the foremost of living critics, for he has written a number of such works, all showing absolute detachment of his personal interests and prejudices and written in fairness and sincerity. Certainly his talents should no longer be hidden under the diplomatic uniform. If his life is spared he can do greater work.

But while the press of the country bids Mr. Bryce hail and farewell with scarcely a jarring note in the cordialty of its tribute, why can it not be equally just and cordial in its welcome home of an American who is coming back to us after years of useful service to his people in foreign lands? There is much in common in the lives of James Bryce and Whitelaw Reid. Mr. Reid was an author, historian, publicist, who also turned diplomat in later years.

We dislike to see in the papers the jeering flings of petty natures at Mr. Reid, who announced his approaching retirement long before the election or before the split in the Republican party foreshadowed the result. There are the usual ribald taunts of snobbery, etc. Those who know that Mr. Reid was a farmer boy in Greene county, Ohio, that he edited a county paper at Xenia; that he was the most famous correspondent of the civil war, that he was Horace Greeley's successor as editor of the New York Tribune, know that the slurs of the little minds are based upon envy and hatred of all forms of gentility. To them the refinements of old world civilization and society are incomprehensible. Tales of snobbishness and haughtiness have been told of all the great men who have represented us in the great courts abroad. They were told of Benjamin Franklin, John Quincy Adams and Thomas Jefferson in their day, they were made especially bitter in reference to James Russell Lowell and John Hay. Perhaps some part of them come from some of our boorish compatriots, who take their money and their bad manners abroad and act like the attendants at a Tammany Hall picnic down the bay.

Mr. Reid deserves a welcome home based upon his character, his career and his personality. Great tribute will be paid him when death summons him. Let us show our appreciation now when he comes home to stay.

THAT SIXTY-DAY SESSION.

What's this? Mr Cox, governor-elect, is reported as desiring a sixty-day session of the general assembly and largely confined to a passage of the necessary appropriation bills? This is almost inconceivable. For six months Mr. Cox has been going up and down the state advocating all the constitutional changes including the freaks, foibles and fads promulgated in the constitutional convention. Nearly every one of those adopted necessitated legislative supplementary action How can they be considered and disposed of in sixty days? The liquor license amendment regulations alone will take that long. The judiciary system of the state is to be revolutionized. Those two eminent lawyers, the governor and attorney general, are already at odds about that New municipal codes are to be written, new election systems to be devised, new plans for taxation are to be formulated In fact, there is hardly a field of human endeavor, which has not been touched upon by the amendments making legislation of a potential character absolutely necessary. Then there are new offices to be provided for The justices of the peace have been surreptitiously abolished, holds the attorney general, and something must be done to restore the people's courts

We do not blame Mr. Cox for his nervous desire to have the legislature out of the state house, but how can he bring it about in face of the work that is to be done Why, Jimmy yelled from every stump in Ohio that the burning issue of the campaign was "mothers' pensions," and it will take more than sixty days to agree upon the form of that law, the amount of the pension, what mothers shall be entitled to it and under what form of confiscation the money shall be taken to pay for it The legislature will hardly get down to work in sixty days, and it will be grinding away slowly when the electors are registering for the municipal elections next fall.

THE WORLD AND MR. TAFT.

Two days after the election the New York World said of President Taft:

"As president, Mr. Taft will leave a record of many triumphs and a single conspicious and fatal blunder He has been a constitutional magistrate, governing by law and not by caprice. He has given us the greatest supreme court since the days of Marshall and Story. He was the first president to enforce the criminal clauses of the Sherman law He has urged the reform of judicial procedure. He has powerfully supported the cause of arbitration. He has worked for reciprocity. He has suppressed jingoism He has promoted civil-service reform. He has brought about the corporation tax. He has had regard for economy."

And this from the paper which made a notable fight against Mr. Taft throughout the campaign It is such divergent views as those held by the World and other papers of its class before and after elections which cause the public, at times, to doubt the honesty and sincerity of the press.

Women are now wearing coats and vests, but it's hardly probably that all of 'em will be satisfied till they wear hip pockets.

AMONG THE DEMOCRATIC INDIANS.

We would not be surprised to see Governor Harmon "take his foot in his hand," as Uncle Remus used to say, and "put out" for Cincinnati without waiting to see his mantle descend upon the gracefully sloping shoulders of James M. Cox The hour for pretense passed with the closing of the ballot-box, and Cox no longer has to polifox and disguise the opinion he has held of Uncle Jud since a certain January day during the last senatorial election. Now he is making evident that his is to be a new administration, not a continuation of the present one. It is a safe bet that a lot of fellows who were put in cold storage over three years ago, will find "welcome" on the doormat in the northwest corner of the capitol, after the middle of January, and that a lot of haughty, fussy, patriots who have been acting as major domos and bear leaders in that same section of the state house will not even be permitted to play with the squirrels.

Mr. Cox is justified in his grievance. He is only one of the many who have suffered from discourtesy and worse in that quarter. He went as far as he dared before election in pursuit of vengeance when he made Gentle Bill Finley, who had just been kicked out of office by Uncle Jud for disloyalty, the chairman of his campaign committee. Now the bridle is off and another and deadlier blow is aimed. It is reported that Finley is to be made superintendent of insurance. Think of that! Remember that that is the job that Governor Harmon framed up for his manager, Ed Moore, and had the salary boosted to $6,000—a raise of fifty per cent. And William Finley is to have this place, with the inflated salary, and to remain at the head of the organization to see that no Harman man gets near enough to the pie counter to get a whiff of the pastry. And we also hear that Judge Rockwell, who has been kept in chains and compelled to sit in rags at the king's gate, is to be liberated and authorized to pick out a few of the Hamans who have been persecuting him and have them on the gallows which they erected for him. You know Rockwell was induced to make certain important sacrifices under certain promises, and after he had done so was politely handed a bookkeeper's job and told to walk quietly to the rear and find an inconspicuous desk and stick to it. The bold and truculent Ben Chamberlain will return to his muttons and the Alphabetical Jones, who has weepingly seen convicts swarm over the penitentiary walls, because he would not let the Dispatch move the prison out into the country where the yeggs could pry the modest violet from their mossy beds with their jimmies, will go back to hotel life in the tank towns. There will be an exodus, all right, and Harvey Garber will be there to see it, curse the day! And the Jefferson club will march over the Broad street bridge and demand the head of James Ross on a charger. Yes, and they will get it, too, unless Wilyum Finley has forgotten how to use his snickersnee. Life is just one condemned thing after another; the variety comes of the fact that sometimes one crowd does the things, and sometimes another.' This is King Cox's turn, and Finley is his prophet.

MR. BRYAN FOR CABINET PLACE.

We are at a loss to understand the objection of eastern Democrats to Mr. Bryan having first place in the Wilson cabinet. It looks like a fussy hostility to Mr. Bryan which is without good reasoning and it largely comes from Democrats who never lifted a finger to nominate Governor Wilson, while Colonel Bryan made the Wilson nomination not only a thing possible, but a recorded fact If any one man in all the country is entitled to the highest honor in the gift of the new president it is Colonel Bryan. But for the great Nebraskan, Dr. Wilson's ambition would have been kicked into a cocked hat by the eastern and southern Democratic leaders. Colonel Bryan not only nominated the new president, but next to Colonel Roosevelt, he did more than any other one man in the coutry to elect him. The obligation of the president-elect is ample to assure appointment, providing Colonel Bryan desires to accept a cabinet place.

But there are other reasons Mr. Bryan is the real leader of his party He is the originator and teacher of the dominant political thought of the day. As a "progressive" he was a pioneer when LaFollette began to lecture, and was a patriarch before Roosevelt began to spout. There can be no campaign prejudice to suggest insincerity now when we write that the posing "progressives" of the country were garbed in livery stolen from Colonel Bryan. All the progressivism that Dr. Wilson knows he learned from Bryan, and the country has voted its approval of Bryan ideas The Roosevelt vote, counting to millions, was a popular expression of Bryan ideas. It comes in poor grace, therefore, for anybody to give hostile utterance to the fullest possible recognition of Mr Bryan.

He is a big man He is honest. He is immensely broadened by travel, experience and acquirement since he made his first race sixteen years ago. He is able, and highly patriotic. He is the great man of his party, and one of the truly great men of his country. We do not know that he wishes to enter the cabinet, but unless he is tendered the highest place, the new president is as much an ingrate as any man ever elected to the presidency. We shall not believe him capable of such ingratitude until he gives proof More, if Mr Bryan is a menace as a cabinet leader, then the party elected to power is a greater one

Lincoln Steffens says Lieutenant Becker is suffering for the sins of society One would naturally expect a fellow like Steffens to appear as an apologist for Becker Both war against society, Becker against individual members and Steffens against society as a whole

It's liable to occasion not a little grief when some of the Democrats who are crowding around the pie counter realize that some of the choicest offerings will not come out of the oven for something like four years.

We will say this for Woodrow Wilson we believe he will make a better president for the country-at-large than his party would have him.

Maybe the Balkan allies are simply trying to show Italy how to conduct a real Turkey hunt

Another thing which has its influence on the high cost of living is the tendency of the skilled artisan to feel that his labor should be restricted to standing around and telling somebody less skilled in his particular line how to do a job of work.

ASLEEP AT THE SWITCH.

The Youngstown Telegram, which Bull Moosed before the national convention and maintained a position of dignified neutrality thereafter, prints the following significant editorial

Colonel Roosevelt went to Chicago as a candidate against President Taft. Colonel Bryan went to the Baltimore convention to nominate the man who would best represent what Bryan stood for.

Personal ambition entered largely into the fight in the one case; it was absent in the other.

If Colonel Roosevelt had made the fight for Progressive principles at Chicago in the manner that Bryan fought in Baltimore, President Taft would not have been nominated and a representative Progressive such as Governor Hadley or Senator Cummins would have been nominated by the Republican party.

With a united party and a candidate supported by Colonel Roosevelt as Bryan supported Wilson, Tuesday would in all probability have recorded a Democratic defeat instead of a Republican one

This is the great regrettable fact in this campaign. The election of a Progressive Republican president with Roosevelt's support and endorsement would have promised more and better for the country than the election of Governor Wilson

The Telegram is right, of course, about this, in the main, although we hold that there was no good reason for refusing Mr Taft a renomination except that a campaign of misrepresentation and abuse had destroyed his popularity to a great extent But if political expediency demanded a new candidacy why did not the Telegram and other anti-Taft papers make the demand before the Chicago convention? Why did they not enforce the present view upon the supporters of Roosevelt? It is a matter of common knowledge that, at the national convention, Mr Taft empowered his friends, if they felt that party unity and party success demanded it, to withdraw his name from consideration. It is a matter of common knowledge that Roosevelt refused to permit his friends to consider any candidacy but his own. The Telegram knew these facts at that time; it knew them during the campaign. It should have rebuked the insensate ambition of the colonel during his campaign to wreck the party; it is a little late now with its criticism to have it effective

The question which is bothering the Democratic leaders is whether Wilson, the historian, or Wilson, the politician, will be president.

A Kentuckian has succeeded in raising chickens without wings, but it's hardly probable that it will ever become so common as the centipede variety so favored by the hotel trade.

Even taking Senator Dixon's figures at their face value, there were 10,000,000 voters in the land out of about 13,000,000 who didn't take any great amount of stock in the theory that there was but one possible saviour of the country.

THOUGHTLESS!

[Toledo Times.]

A single thoughtless word may wreck a human life. A single gentle word may save a suffering soul, says John A. Sleicher, in Leslie's.

Now that it is all over, what can be said in extenuation of such a campaign of thoughtless utterances? The spoken word remains It can be recalled and forgiven, but it can not be forgotten. It is like an evil deed—it stands forever.

Reputations have been ruined, promising prospects blasted, hopes destroyed and fortunes lost by a word carelessly spoken. Even a shrug of the shoulders may imperil a reputation.

It is not strange that, with all the words so caerlessly spoken by public men, by writers of reputation in our magazines and by editors of our most popular newspapers, the people have been brought to a state of extraordinary unrest, unhappiness and grave disquiet! It is surprising that religion languishes, that the church is challenged and divine authority questioned as never before? What else could be expected?

We are mistaking mutiny for independence, muckraking for progress and yellow journalism for fearless press Demagogues are masquerading in the garments of statesmen and the clamor of their noisy followers has drowned the voice of reason. The red flag of anarchy heads the procession, and dynamite is substituted for justice. The constitution is challenged, law defied and judges are threatened with recall and removal if they dare face the crazy mob

If this nation is to live, the good citizens of the land must awaken speedily and courageously to the performance of the patriotic duty that lies before them. The gospel of true liberty must be taught at the altar of every family circle and preached in every office and workship. Respect for the constitution of the fathers, obedience to the law of the land, even-handed justice for all, right living and right thinking must be zealously taught

And we should also teach, with unsparing severity, that never in haste, in anger or malevolence, should false witness against a neighbor be permitted to go unchallenged and unrebuked.

REPRESENTATIVE GOVERNMENT.

[Philadelphia Inquirer]

By fundamental law, by statute and by practice ours is a representative government. This fact is so well known that it was irritating to have Colonel Roosevelt during the recent campaign insist that this was a government of the people by popular majorities. It is nothing of the sort.

Next March the Democratic party will have complete control of the federal government, although it appears that it cast only about forty-six per cent. of the popular vote last Tuesday. Whatever the percentage, the result is the same and will be accepted loyally. Apparntly Mr. Wilson gets fewer votes than Bryan four years ago, when the latter was defeated, but the verdict is none the less that of the American people. If the American people have made a mistake they can soon rectify it In the meantime, they will only ask of the new administration that it do its best according to its lights A verdict will be passed later upon such efforts

But the point to be made is that this is not a pure democracy, but a republic, a government of the whole by the chosen representatives. President Taft was right in this matter and Colonel Roosevelt was wrong. The facts speak for themselves.

TUBERCULOSIS THE SUBJECT OF ADDRESS

Dr. C. O. Probst Is Heard by Marion County Physicians.

THOUGHTS OF GREAT VALUE ARE SUBMITTED

Why Such Great Interest Is Taken in Stamping Out the Great White Plague—Efforts of Many Generations Will Be Required To Bring About Results Desired.

Dr. C. O. Probst, of Columbus, secretary of the state board of health and an authority on tuberculosis, addressed the members of the Marion County Medical society in the assembly room of the Marion public library building on south Main street, Tuesday evening. His subject was "Some Phases of the Tuberculosis Problem."

Dr. Probst was introduced by Dr. F. Young, president of the local society, as a man who had long observed the disease both in this country and in Europe. The distinguished physician said in part:

"There is perhaps no subject in medicine with which the lay reader is already so familiar. No other medical subject is receiving so much notice in the press and various lay journals. The medical journals also are probably giving more space to tuberculosis than to any other one disease, while some half dozen or more journals are now published which are devoted exclusively to this subject.

"There is a reason for this. No other disease is so widely prevalent. No one other cause of death claims so many victims. One person about every three minutes in this country alone goes down before the monster. Of our 95,000,000 of people now living over 10,000,000 are doomed as its victims. We may lessen this, but not greatly, in my opinion, for it is going to take the best efforts of several generations to eradicate this plague.

What Is Tuberculosis?

"What is tuberculosis? It is not the same thing as consumption as man people think—that is, consumption is but one and a late manifestation of tuberculosis, of which there are many Phtisis or consumption, as the words indicate, means wasting, but we may ahve tuberculois and even plumonary tuberculosis—that is, tuberculosis of the lungs, without any wasting. This is one reason why the disease is so often overlooked. It is hard for people to realize that an individual of normal weight and healthy appearance may have tuberculosis, yet such is quite often the case."

Dr. Probst discussed the origin and nature of tuberculosis at great length, and continued:

"Infected children need pure fresh air as well as sufficient food to fight off tuberculosis. Fresh air at home for such children is a matter of both education and proper construction of the dwelling. We must have proper building laws and their strict enforcement, but this does little good unless we induce parents to adopt the open window.

"The school gets these children a good part of the time. The dark, ill-ventilated, overcrowded school room does them great harm. The open-air school, on the contrary, especially when combined with extra food, will save many of their lives. There are thousands of children in school who would be a hundred times better off, in my judgment, if they were turned out to play, even though they may never go back again.

Build Resistance.

"We must do more than build up the resistance of our children. Comparatively few under fifteen years of age die of tuberculosis. The adult must be considered. Among his needs to maintain vigorous health are reasonable hours of work under proper sanitary conditions. Some of our most successful employers of labor are now, on purely economic grounds, providing every possible condition to improve the health of their employes as a means of increasing their efficiency. Home conditions must be improved. The wife and daughter must learn how to turn raw food into appetizing, nutritious product. Municipal sanitation must receive greater attention Streets and alleys kept free from filth and dust; sewer connections for every dwelling, pure water, pure food, numerous parks, and all that goes to make a clean, healthful city will lessen the ravages of tuberculosis and diminish unnecessary or premature deaths from other causes. It is significant and encouraging that the platforms of political parties of today are appealing to the voters by promises to give much greater attention to improving public health conditions."

In conclusion, Dr. Probst said:

Hoped for Blessing.

"While we may hope that medical science may yet give us a special method for rendering us immune to tuberculosis, this would be an unmixed blessing if it should stop the organized effort which is gaining ground throughout the world to prevent the disease by improving general health conditions. If we can acquire such robust health that we can successfully resist the germs of tuberculosis, we will have built up a defense against a host of other ailments, to which we are constantly exposed.

"It would be well for us to recognize that sickness is nearly always due to the sins of commission or omission on the part of ourselves, of our ancestors, or of the community in which we dwell. In this sense tuberculosis may be regarded as a social disease which nature makes use of to force her children to obey her laws and to follow the paths of right living.

"We should unite in a mighty effort to lift this curse from the heads of our people, and in this great work each of us may easily find the way to lend a helping hand."

POSTAL STATION WILL BE CHANGED SHORTLY

Business Too Heavy To Be Handled at Gem Pharmacy.

It was announced, Tuesday, that the location of the money order and stamp station in the West End, which is now situated in the Gem Pharmacy and conducted by J. E. Messenger, will be changed in the near future. Mr. Messenger stated that the reason for the change is that the business of the station is becoming so heavy, that he is unable to handle it and conduct his drug business.

A glance at the statistics of the busy little office verifies the reason given by Mr. Messenger for wishing to discontinue the work. The report for the last six months, ending September 30, shows that 2,064 money orders, amounting to $12,289, were issued and that stamps amounting to $2,226 were sold. Mr. Messenger stated that this report showed a much heavier business than many postoffices in small towns which are rated much higher.

J. C Salisbury, of the Salisbury pharmacy, F. W Wilhelm, who conducts a hardware and shoe store, and Clifford Lower of the Lower pharmacy are applicants for the station.

MARION FRIENDS ARE GIVEN A SURPRISE

Miss Ethel Dolson Weds Mr. Ralph E. Foster.

The friends of Miss Ethel F. Dolson, a niece of Mr. and Mrs R. W. Kingsley, Sunday evening, October 6 The young people wil reside for the present at Casper, the groom being engaged in the gold mining business. He is a son of J W. Foster, of Denver.

The bride is quite well known in Marion She went West with her uncle and aunt and after graduating from the Butte high school, took a course in the Wesleyan university at Helena, Montana. Last June she went to Casper and accepted a position as bookkeeper in the office of the city hospital.

MRS. WILLIAM BENTON A VICTIM OF DROPSY

Passes Away at Home at Martel Tuesday.

Martel, O, Nov. 13.—[Special].—Mrs William Benton, forty-one years old, died Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Death was due to dropsy, of which she had been a sufferer for six years at her home here

Mrs. Benton leaves a husband and one son, Glenn, nineteen years old. She is also survived by three sisters, Mrs Jacob Haney, of Martel; Mrs. Letta Decker, of Columbus, and Mrs. Elizabeth Vanatta, of Lemert, and one brother, William Price, of Bucyrus.

CHARLES EDWARDS IS CONVICTED OF CHARGE

Is Found Guilty of Burglary and Larceny.

PRISONER GIVES THE SHERIFF MUCH TROUBLE

Makes an Effort To Escape from Jail, but Is Caught as the Result of a Prisoner Informing the Sheriff—A Sister Present Throughout the Trial.

Charles Edwards, twenty-seven years old, who, according to Sheriff John G Stark is the meanest prisoner he ever had, was found guilty of burglary and larceny as charged in the indictment by a jury at the courthouse, Tuesday afternoon about 4 o'clock

The jury had retired only a short time, after being charged by Judge William E. Scofield, when it wanted further instructions It developed that the jurors wanted to return two separate verdicts agnst the prisoner—one for burglary and another for larceny, not knowing that the burglary indictment covered the larceny verdict.

Edwards, who pleaded guilty in the mayor's court, was defended by Attorney John C. McNally on his plea of not guilty in the common pleas court Prosecuting Attorney Charles L. Justice handled the prosecution for the state.

During the time that Edwards has been confined in the county jail, it was learned Tuesday, he made a daring attempt to escape, but was captured as the result of one of his fellow prisoners informing the sheriff. Edwards had removed some brick and was making great headway toward escape when discovered. He was put in a cell and kept on a diet of bread and water for three days Edwards is possessed of an exceptionally mean disposition. A negro prisoner threatened to kill him because of his alleged abuse, and it was necessary to keep them separated.

Throughout his trial, Mrs. James Wizner, of Cleveland, a sister of Edwards, sat beside him in the courtroom Edwards was convicted for burglarizing the C. C. Brown barber shop in West Marion and stealing barber tools.

FLUSHING STOPPED BY CITY SOLICITOR

Taxpayers Will Be Saved the Sum of $500.

Tuesday, by order of City Solicitor Fred W. Warner, the work of flushing Blaine avenue preparatory to laying concrete for paving was stopped. As a result the taxpayers will be saved about the sum of $500.

If the earth is dry the paving contractors' contract provides that it be flushed with water at eight cents a square yard. The thoroughfare contains 6,800 square yards, and Tuesday the subcontractors, J W. Scott & Son, started to flush the street. Because the street is not dry, taxpayers complained to the city solicitor and he ordered the flushing stopped. Paving contractors claim that the earth must be wet before the concrete is laid, but the solicitor thought that the earth was plenty damp enough for the laying of the concrete without flushing the street.

Never try to clean yokes, collars or cuffs while sewed on the gown. Such things should always be made detachable.

POOR CHANCE OF GETTING MR. DICKERSON'S PLACE

Marion Postmaster Likely To Hold the Office

FOR FOUR YEARS FROM NEXT FEBRUARY

His Commission Will Expire While President Taft Is Still in Office and His Reappointment to the Postmastership Is Practically a Certainty.

Any of the Democrats who are counting on sticking their official feet under the official desk in the place of Postmaster M. B. Dickerson at the federal building, will do well to cling to their present jobs. To be sure, Mr. Dickerson has no perpetuated lease on the job, but he has a fine prospect for more than four years to come.

The truth is that Mr. Dickerson has a commission that expires in next February, just a few weeks before the new Democratic administration comes into power. Thereby comes Mr. Dickerson's good fortune, when his commission expires, as it surely will in February, President Taft will reappoint him, which is the natural, logical and very proper thing to do Mr. Dickerson has a fine record as postmaster, and there are no good objections to his reappointment. In all human probability the senate will confirm and when that is done Mr. Dickerson will be commissioned to continue as a very excellent postmaster for four more years. Then just as President Wilson's term comes to its close, some longing Democrat will succeed him.

The Marion postoffice change, for many years, has come late in the presidential term. It was so when the late B Tristram succeeded Mr. Lapham, during the first Cleveland administration. It was far in the term when Schiller Fogelson followed Tristram, under the Harrison administration. It was still later in the term when the late John H. Thomas receipted for the stamps on hand, when Cleveland came back, and still later when J. Bruen Fisher followed Mr. Thomas. Mr. Fisher resigned the place in 1904 and Mr. Dickerson was commissioned for four years from December in that year. He was due to be recommissioned in December 1908, but there was some delay, though there was no contest and his present four-year commision dates from February, 1909. So, in the natural course of events he will be recommissioned next February, and there is no doubt the senate will confirm then Mr. Dickerson is good for a full term, except on removal for misconduct in office. Nobody will expect anything like that, for Mr Dickerson is counted one of the best postmasters in all the land. He is a Republican, to be sure. That's why he will get a new commission at the hands of President Taft.

RECORDS BROKEN BY BIG STOCK SHOW

Great Livestock Exposition in Chicago Soon.

With its $75,000 offeerd in prizes and its entries closed, the International Live Stock Exposition, which will be held on the dates of November 30 to December 7 inclusive, at the Union Stock Yards, Chicago, has broken all records in every department in regard to the number of exhibits. Every breed of cattle, sheep swine and horses will be represented on a much larger scale, the arrangements for the show have been better provided for, and the great stock show of 1912 will go down into history as the most comprehensive, the most complete, the most modern, advanced and up to date of all the exhibitions, wonderful as they have been, which have preceded it. Such a statement of facts as this, is positive proof of the importance of the event and how it is regarded by the stockmen of the country.

It not only offers to breeders, feeders, farmers and others who are interested in the live stock industery, a school of analysis but a free and liberal education in everything that a stockman requires, and present to the sons of these men an opportunity for obtaining that information, and insight to the stockman's business so necessary so indespensable to them in after years.

Breeders, feeders and farmers who are developing a business of the kind, or who have already developed one, and who have sons ready to step into their shoes when they shall have cast them off, and put upon them the slippers of ease and restfulness, owe to these young men the privilege of seeing this extraordinary Exposition, and imbiding that knowledge without which they will be sorely handicapped when they come to compete with those who have taken advantage and profited by the opportunities it affords.

Money spent in attending this Show is money invested in gilt edged security that will return interest at the rate of a hundred per cent.

OFFICIAL REPORT OF CROPS OF THE STATE

Report Made by the Ohio Department of Agriculture.

CONDITION OF CROPS IS REGARDED GOOD

The Statement Is Based on the Reports Received from the Official Correspondents Located in Every Quarter of the State and Covers Acreage and Production.

The following report is computed from returns received from the official correspondents of the Ohio department of agriculture·

Wheat, area sown last fall returned by township assessors, 1,777,862 acres; sown this fall compared with last year, 94 per cent.; estimated area seeded for harvest of 1913, 1,669,656 acres; condition compared with an average, 98 per cent.; average date of seeding, September 28.

Alfalfa, area in 1911 returned by township assessors, 27,139 acres; area compared with last year, 91 per cent.; estimated area in 1912, 26,756 acres; total tons produced per acre from all cuttings, 3.; total estimated product for 1912, 88,211 tons; number of cuttings this year, 3.

Rye, area sown last fall returned by township assessors, 88,533 acres; sown this fall compared with last year, 110 per cent; estimated area seeded for the harvest of 1913, 97,644 acres; condition compared with an average, 98 per cent.;

Sugar Beets, estimated area for 1911, 6,443 acres; estimated area for 1912, 7,438 acres; total estimated production for 1912, 81,343 tons; total yield compared with 1911, 92 per cent.

Corn, prospect compared with an average, 100 per cent.

Buckwheat, prospect compared with an average, 96 per cent.

Clover Seed, prospect compared with an average, 70 per cent.

Potatoes, area planted, returned by township assessors, 103,262 acres; average production an acre 112 bushels; total estimated production for 1912, 11,604,902 bushels; affected by rot 5 per cent.

Hogs, condition compared with an average, 94 per cent; number to be fattened compared with 1911, 84 per cent.

State Average Prices.

The state average prices a bushel are· wheat, $1.01; corn, .59; barley, .68, oats, .35; rye, .80; potatoes, .52. A ton, hay, $13.46; alfalfa, 16.20; sugar beets, 4.96.

In the official October report issued by this department mention was made of the fact that many correspondents reported a small wheat acreage being seeded. The figures contained in this report show that in comparison with the original area seeded for the 1912 harvest the present acreage is but ninety-four per cent. However, forty-four per cent. of the wheat area sown last year was abandoned in the spring, and but 1,079,894 acres remained for the harvest just past. The present estimated area seeded for the 1913 harvest is reported at 1,669,656 acres. Much of the wheat was sown late, but its growing condition generally is excellent. The state average is estimated at ninety-eight per cent.

Alfalfa figures show an average production of three tons an acre with an estimated production for the state as a whole of 88,211 tons. This is a substantial increase over the production of last year.

The area seeded to rye shows an increase of ten per cent in comparison with the area of last year as reported by the township assessors. Its growing condition is the same as wheat—ninety-eight per cent.

Corn prospects are excellent. The estimated acreage planted is 3,197,884 acres. From present prospects this should produce approximately 112,000,000 bushels Favorable weather has prevailed during the fall, and cribbing is in progress with the crop in fine condition.

For the first time in the department's history figures are presented here in reference to sugar beets. The report shows that the total estimated prodution for 1912 was 81,343 tons. This is a decline of eight per cent. in comparison with the production of 1911.

While the potato area is considerable less than last year, the average production per acre exceeds that crop by fifty bushels. The state production is estimated at 11,604,902 bushels. On the corresponding date one year ago the state production was estimated at 8,161,203 bushels. The present average production an acre is 112 bushels.

Hogs are being rushed to market owing to prevalence of cholera, and this, in conjunction with the scarcity of feeding cattle will cause an unusual amount of corn to be marketed early.

CITY IN BRIEF.

Grocery Is Sold—T. F. Sprague has sold his grocery on west Center street to A. M. Leslie of near Richwood. Mr. Leslie took possession the first of this week.

Italian Injured—Constantino Anesto, No. 3725, employed at the Erie transfer, had the end of the ring finger of his right hand crushed while trucking, Tuesday

Work of Excavating—The work of excavating for the new central fire station on south Prospect street has been very nearly completed. Part of the foundation walls have been laid, and the remainder of the work is progressing rapidly.

Is Given Liberty—Allen Corbin, a plasterer, who was given a suspended workhouse sentence by Justice Charles E. Gompf and placed in jail over Sunday to sober up, was released Monday. He promised to go to work and support his family.

Many Candidates—Seventeen candidates were initiated and twenty-two applications were received at a meeting of the Loyal Order of Moose, Monday evening. A banquet has been arranged for next Monday evening, when the degree will be conferred on a class.

Is Stricken Monday—Mrs Rebecca Menear, of Morgantown, West Virginia, who is visiting her sisters, Mrs. Samuel Hudson and Mrs. Julia Hudson, of north Main street, suffered a stroke of paralysis at the Julia Hudson home, about 11 o'clock Monday. Her condition is serious.

Wilhelm Gets Office—The sub-station postoffice for West Marion has been awarded to Frank W. Wilhelm, who conducts two stores on west Center street. The postoffice will be conducted in connection with his shoe store, at No 570 west Center street, located in the Olean building. This will give the business men an opportunity to purchase stamps, money orders and transact other postal business.

Coming Corn Show—A meeting of the members of the Corn Improvement association was held, Tuesday evening, in the basement of the Marion County bank. The meeting was well attended. Aside from the routine business, it was decided to hold the annual corn show at the Uhler-Phillips store the first week in January. Friday afternoon was set as the time for the field meeting to be held at the farm of W. B. Peters, of east Center street. The next meeting of the association will be held next Tuesday evening.

Judges are Named—Monday morning, the county commissioners named Harry Williams and Alfred W. Jones as judges of the acre of corn raised by William Raub, who is entered in the state's corn contest for the trip to Washington. The judges are to weigh the corn and send their findings to A. P. Sandles, secretary of the Ohio agricultural board. Young Raub, who is a son of County Commissioner-elect J. H Raub, is the only Marion county contestant. The special train to Washington will carry about 200 Ohio farmer boys.

TWO COLORED MEN ARE LANDED IN CITY PRISON

Oliver Baird Shot Through the Arm by D. A. West.

QUARREL OVER DOLLAR LEADS TO SHOOTING

Grover Cole and W. E. Ridenour Report That Their Wheels Are Stolen—Bicycle Stealing Is Becoming Common in the City. Police Court Notes.

Oliver Baird and D. A. West, both colored, are confined in the city prison as a result of a shooting affray in which Baird was shot through the right arm by West at the latter's saloon on north Main street. The trouble occurred, shortly after 7 o'clock Monday evening, and both men were arrested a few minutes later by Officers Slagle and McColly.

According to the story of the trouble, Baird was in possession of a dollar, half of which belonged to a companion who was with him. The men entered West's place and purchased two glasses of beer. Baird laying down the dollar in order to get the change and give his partner half of the money. West took the money and decided to keep the entire dollar as Baird was indebted to him for some borrowed money

Baird started to explain that the dollar did not belong to him, and during the argument which followed West is alleged to have thrown a bottle at Baird, the later in turn throwing his glass at West. The latter then reached for his revolver and Baird started for the door. West shot at him as he was going out the door, the bullet striking Baird in the right arm just above the elbow and going through the arm. A number were passing the place at the time, and but for Baird stopping the bullet, the ball would probably have struck some innocent person.

Dr. J. B. Taylor was called to the city prison and dressed Baird's arm. This makes the second time Baird has been shot within the past seven weeks. He was accidentally shot in the neck and suffered but little as the result of his first experience, Baird stated at the prison, Tuesday, that he would file a charge against West Tuesday afternoon.

Grover Cole, of Ola street, reported to the police, Monday night, that his bicycle had been stolen. The wheel is an Iver-Johnston make with a black frame, mud guard on the rear, and is equipped with a coaster brake. W. E. Ridenour also reported the theft of his wheel, a Royal Roadster.

Bicycle thieving in the city has been so common of late that the police are of the opinion that the thefts are being carried on by an organized gang, and the wheels taken out of the city in automobiles or wagons. An effort to break up the stealing will be made and the first thief caught will be made an example.

A serious smashup was narrowly averted o nCenter street, Tuesday morning, and as a result an affidavit will probably be filed against T. S. Crissinger, of Martel, charging him with violating the speed ordinance. Crissinger, or whoever was driving his machine, was coming from the east and attempted to pass a street car and a rig coming in the same direction. He drove between the horse and car at a rate of forty-five miles an hour, it is alleged, the rear end of the automobile striking the horse on the head, but doing no damage. The number of the automobile was 30972.

Report was made to the police, Wednesday, that Elliott Swift Nimmo, for whom the police were looking, last week, for shooting at Mrs. John Harris, of Cottage street, visited Cottage street, Monday night, and shot through the windows of one house, after a threat to kill some of the colored inhabitans of that vicinity. Nimmo shot one colored man through an arm last week when he had his trouble at the Harris home, but the colored man did not file a charge against him.

CEREMONY PERFORMED IN EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Miss Sadamae Allen Weds Mr. L. N. Dunihue.

REV. ALBION H. ROSS OFFICIATING MINISTER

A Large Company of Relatives and Friends Witness Marriage Rites. A Reception at the Allen Home. Mr. and Mrs. Dunihue Will Make Home in Columbus.

Miss Sadamae Allen, the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Allen, of east Center street, plighted her troth to Mr. Lawrence Northcraft Dunihue, of Columbus, Wednesday evening, about 8 o'clock, at one of the prettiest church weddings ever held in Marion.

The ceremony was performed at St. Paul's Episcopal church, of which the bride is one of the soloists. The edifice was florally beautified with ferns, palms and large white chrysanthemums, which were banked about the altar and chancel. A large canopy reaching from the street to the door protected the beautiful costumes of the bridal party and guests.

The regular Episcopal service was used, the choir, with Miss Ada Bowen at the organ, singing as they entered the auditorium. Miss Bowen played Lohengrin's wedding march as the bridal party slowly proceeded down an aisle, formed of white ribbons. The little ring bearer, Master Loren Baker Allen, a brother of the bride, carrying the ring on a white satin pillow showered with ribbons, preceded the bride, who followed on the arm of her father, Mr. Charles Howard Allen, of Toledo. She was beautiful in a gown of white charmeuse with trimmings of real Brussels lace and orange blossoms, with a long veil caught with the blossoms on a dainty lace cap. She carried a large bouquet of bride roses. Miss Lilian Burgess, and intimate friend of the bride, was maid of honor, and wore a fetching gown of green charmeuse and carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums.

The bride and her attendants were met at the chancel by the groom and his attendant, Dr. Joseph Heitger, of Bedford, Indiana, an intimate friend. As they entered the chancel and proceded to the altar, the bride's brother, Mr. Percy M. Allen, sang, "Beloved, It Is Morn." Miss Bowen played softly through the ceremony which was performed by the rector, Rev. Albion H. Ross, and witnessed by over 150 friends and relatives of the young people. The ushers were Mr. Tracy R. Allen, an uncle of the bride, and Mr. Arthur King.

Following the church service, about forty intimate friends and relatives were entertained at a reception held at the E. G. Allen home. The living-room and parlor were decorated with bittersweet and the dining-room in the bride's color scheme of green and white. The bride's table, at which covers were laid for ten, was trimmed with a large basket of white chrysanthemums tied with white tulle ribbon, and the smaller tables were also prettily decorated. The place cards were tiny slippers in gold and white. After the dinner an informal hour was enjoyed and Mr. and Mrs. Dunihue left at 10:45 o'clock for a short trip through the East. They were accompanied to the train by many of their friends.

Among some of the beautiful gowns were those worn by the mothers of the bride and groom and the bride's grandmother. Mrs. Dunihue wore grey silk trimmed with lace; Mrs. Charles Howard Allen wore blue marquisette over crepe de Chine with real lace, and Mrs. E. G. Allen was attired in a pretty gown of raspberry colored silk with marquisette over dress.

Several hundred costly and beautiful gifts were received by Mr. and Mrs. Dunihue.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howard Allen, of Toledo, and is an accomplished young woman. She is a graduate of Linden hall, Lititz, Pennsylvania, and studied voice, French and German in Paris three years. For the past five years she has resided with her grandparents and moves in the younger social circles of the city. She is a member of the Morning Musical club and several social clubs.

The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick L. Dunihue, of Bedford, Indiana, and is a contractor for the Bedford Stone company, with headquarters in Columbus, in which city the young couple will reside in a flat already awaiting their return from their bridal trip. They will be at home to their friends after January 1.

The out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howard Allen and sons, Howard and Loren, of Toledo, and Percy Allen, of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Frederick L. Dunihue, Dr. Joseph Heitger and Mr. Moncur, of Bedford, Indiana; Mrs. J. H. Vercoe and Miss Mary J. Hardy, of Columbus; Mrs. James DeWolfe, of Detroit, and Miss Clara Babst, of Crestline.

IT'S A MISTAKE

Made By Many Marion Residents.

Many people in a misguided effort to get rid of kidney backache, rely on plasters, liniments and other make-shifts. The right treatment is kidney treatment and a remarkably recommended kidney medicine is Doan's Kidney Pills. Marion is no exception.

The proof is at your very door. The following is an experience typical of the work of Doan's Kidney Pills in Marion.

Mrs. S. Stauffer, 416 Owen St., Marion, Ohio, says: "Thirteen years ago I was a sufferer from kidney trouble. My back was so lame and sore that I could hardily straighten. On several occasions I was attacked with a sharp stitch in my back and it reached away down to my limbs. Doan's Kidney Pills had been recommended to me and I sent for some. One box relieved me wonderfully and now whenever I think that my kidneys need something to tone them up, I take Doan's Kidney Pills. They are a fine medicine and I do not hesitate to endorse them in the highest terms."

MRS. ORPHA J. HUITT SEEKING A DIVORCE

Mrs. Huitt Is Formerly Mrs. Charles Koch, of Marion.

Thursday afternoon, at Kenton, Mrs. Orpha J. Huitt, formerly Mrs. Charles Koch, of Marion, filed a petition for a divorce from Charles Huitt, through Attorney Hoke W. Donithen, of this city. She charged gross neglect of duty and desertion.

A year or so following her divorce from Charles Koch, who conducted a saloon at one time on north Main street, Mrs. Koch married Huitt, who was engaged in the carriage business at Ada. They lived together less than a year, and last August, according to the wife, he sold out his interests at Ada, gave her seventy-five cents and skipped out. She asks for a divorce, reasonable alimony and restoration to her former name of Koch.

SMALL POULTRY PLANT IS EASILY ESTABLISHED

Backyard Offers Chance for the City Resident.

HOUSING OF CHICKENS IS A SIMPLE MATTER

Dampness, Darkness, Draughts and Dirt Chief Things To Be Avoided. How the City Man Can Have His Fresh Fowl and Fresh Eggs Without Great Deal of Trouble.

Establishing and managing a home flock of twenty fowls is not a difficult matter. If one really wishes to make the attempt the essential thing is to start in, as a good way to learn to keep hens is to go ahead and keep them.

The upbuilding and maintaining of a backyard plant involves a comparatively small outlay of cash and labor, and any one possessing average strength and a willingness to faithfully perform the simple daily duties may reasonably expect to succeed.

Many people are deterred from attempting to keep a few hens because of the mistaken notion that they require almost hourly care, which in most cases cannot be given. As a matter of fact, modern methods do away with much of the detail which was formerly considered indispensable. One may adopt open front houses free from openings which must be adjusted daily. Also self-acting feeding devices and water founts of large capacity which require filling but once or twice a week. Fowls managed under such a system may be left to themselves during the entire day and the work connected with the flock actually performed during the evening. There are in successful operation today many plants of considerable size which are run in this manner.

Adult fowls can be successfully handled under an extremely wide range of conditions. The character of the soil is an important matter to the practical poultry farmer, but small flocks may be kept on any soil that is not actually wet. Even when the land is poorly drained and not fit for the birds to range on, laying hens will do fairly well when confined in buildings with earth covered floors elevated somewhat above the ground level. For instance, one enthusiastic amateur near New York city successfully maintains a flock of layers on a small tract of land which is overflowed by every high tide. His poultry house is elevated several feet on posts, and it boasts of a wide platform in front, to which the birds retire when the tide comes in. Such conditions are about as unfavorable as one could imagine, but this instance serves to demonstrate the adaptability of our domestic fowls to have a small flock, even when conditions seem unfavorable.

Before any birds are secured it is necessary to provide suitable quarters for them. The house may be constructed in almost any manner and of practically any building material, as long as it meets a few definite requirements. It must be dry, well ventilated, free from draughts, sunny and cheerful. Any building embodying these few essential points will prove satisfactory to the fowls.

In addition to these, the poultryman will do well to bear in mind the necessity of economy of construction, and also plan the building with reference to its convenience. An inconvenient structure often tempts one to slight the daily details and trouble soon follows.

In purchasing or building a poultry house one should bear the above in mind. Let him avoid the four dangers of poultry house construction, which are easily remembered when stated in alliterative form—dampness, darkness, draughts, dirt.

We wish to repeat that it pays to start on a limited scale. The first house should be small, and either portable or constructed of inexpensive materials. Any one living in rented property should keep in view the possible necessity of moving and plan his poultry buildings accordingly.

There are a number of firms making a specialty of portable poultry houses designed to meet the requirements of poultrymen who would rather purchase a complete house than build it at home. Some of these portable buildings are constructed in units, much like a sectional bookcase and sections may be purchased as required. They are all alike in that they are furnished with complete equipment, are light in construction, quickly erected or taken down and easily transported by wagon or rail. In many cases they cost less than similar structures built at home, especially if high priced carpenters are employed to do the work.

The handy man with some leisure time may prefer to build such houses as he requires. He may purchase the necessary material from the lumber yard, or utilize large boxes, which may usually be purchased at a price much below the value of the material they contain.

In cooking peas and beans, the water should be allowed to boil away to almost nothing. When the seasoning is put in, this makes a delicious juice.

THE SHARPLESS WILL IS FILED FOR PROBATE

Will Is Drawn in Pen and Ink by Mr. Sharpless.

PROVISIONS MADE FOR DIVIDING ESTATE

The Real Estate Is To Be Sold and the Proceeds Divided Equally Among Relatives Named—An Additional Lot in Marion Cemetery. John E. Waddell Is Executor.

November 8, John E. Waddell, executor of the last will and testament of the late Peter Oliver Sharpless filed the instrument for probate The will was made June 12, 1911, and was witnessed by Charles N. Phillips and Earl J. Lee. It is written with pen and ink by Mr. Sharpless himself, and directs that all of his real estate be sold and the proceeds divided equally among the following:

One share to the heirs of Matilda C. Search, a sister now deceased; one share to Celinda H. Runyan, a sister and one share each to Thomas Oscar Sharpless and Henry C. Sharpless, brothers.

Out of the share of Thomas Oscar Sharpless is to be paid a note for $350 given by him in 1893, and the sum of $3.50 a week for board from July 1, 1902, to October 15, 1909, and $4.50 a week since the latter date.

After endowing his lot in the Maron cemetery, Mr. Sharpless directed that $250 be deposited in addition to keep up the grave and to buy flowers. He also provided that a good monument be erected on the lot for himself and for his beloved wife, Martha M. Sharpless. He enclosed designs with his will for the monument and double marker.

The decedent also willed his diamond pin to Abigail Geisinger, if living, and if dead, to his nephew, Preston W. Search; his watch to Fred W. Search, and all the silver and china that belonged to his dead wife to Mrs. Sarah E. Lyman, of Creston, if she wishes it. If Mrs. Lyman does not desire it, then the decedent directs it be given to "some worthy widows who are poor." He bequeathed the household effects to a number of friends and relatives. In appointing an executor, he said:

"I name my friend, John E. Waddell, executor, feeling assured that he will carry out my wishes."

EIGHTEEN DEAD AND SCORE HURT

Frightful Head-On Collision in Indianapolis Suburb.

A PASSENGER TRAIN RUNS INTO FREIGHT

Victims Pinned Beneath Wreck Which Catches Fire.

Eastbound Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Passenger Dashes into an Open Switch While Running Forty Miles an Hour—Indianapolis Fire Department Called To Aid in the Rescue—Survivors' Stories.

Indianapolis, Nov. 13.—Traveling at a speed of forty miles an hour, eastbound Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton passenger train rain into an open switch in Ivrington, a suburb, early this morning and crashed head-on into a Chicago, Hamilton & Dayton freight train, killing at least eighteen persons and injuring a score. Most of the dead were in the first passenger car, which was telescoped with the baggage car. One engineer is believed to be in the wreckage, as well as one of the conductors.

The Known Dead.

Albert Allen and wife, Los Angeles.
Chris Imholt, Los Angeles.
Mrs. Chris Imholt, Los Angeles.
Joseph L. Palmer, Ettawa, Tennessee.
Clifton Cheny, Jackson, Kentucky.
John Cheny, father of Clifton Cheny, Breathitt county, Kentucky.

Chester Cheny.
Charles Cheny, son of Clifton Cheny.
William Sharkey, engineer, Indianapolis.
Irwin Wiggins, conductor, Indianapolis.
Bert White, brakeman, Indianapolis.
Harold Burg, fireman.
Ben Boyle, passenger.
C. F. Grundhofer, Winton Place, Cincinnati.
One unidentified boy, with clothing bearing Louisville mark.

The List of Injured.

Fred Emerson, fireman, Indianapolis.
Fred Patterson, Madison, Virginia, trainman on passenger.
Willis York, freight engineer, Indianapolis.
Burton Jones, Dayton, Kentucky, baggageman, badly hurt.
—— Cox, passenger.
J. C Skillman, baggageman, Indianapolis.
Mrs. J. C. Skillman, Indianapolis.
J. W Jefferson, colored porter, Chicago.
W. J. Filer, Liberty, Indiana.
A. C. Filer, Liberty, Indiana.
Fred Emberton, fireman freight train, badly scalded, Indianapolis.
Mrs. Mary Sears, Indianapolis.
Harry Sell, Chicago, leg broken.
Fred Hutcheson, Madison, Virginia.
Mary Hutcheson, Madison, Virginia.
Mrs. W. F. Zell, Sycamore, Illinois
Carl Gross, brakeman, Indianapolis.
Hugh Kent, Berlin, Kentucky

Comes Without Warning.

The westbound freight ran down past the switch and then backed in so that the locomotive faced the engine of the passenger train, which was going out The switch was left open, so that the passenger dashed, without warning or obstruction, into the other train on the siding.

Carl Gross, head brakeman on the freight, whose duty trainmen say it was to see that the switch was closed, is among the injured.

Firemen and police worked with axes for more than two hours before the first body in the passenger car was uncovered. One of the first acts of the firemen was to cut a hole in the top of the car and pass water to the injured passengers, who were crying pitifully for aid.

Soon after the crash, the wreck caught fire. The trainmen fought the flames with the limited means available, but were unable to suppress or cut away the burning sections.

The city was called on for help. The Irving fire department was the first to the rescue, but the call was made general to the Indianapolis department The water soon played on the steaming wreckage Despite the fact that one or more victims were in imminent danger of burning alive, it was thought the fire could be subdued.

Entire Family Wiped Out.

The entire family of Clayton Cheny, of Jackson, Kentucky, was wiped out and Mr. Cheny's father is lying under the wreckage . The groans of the old man could be heard, and desperate efforts were made to locate the victim.

The groans of the injured under the wreck were redoubled with the approach of the flames The rescuers were appalled by the deadly danger threatening old Mr Cheny, as he lay entombed under the arch of the crushed coach. Before the fire department had arrived, the axes and saws were hacking and biting at the timber wall which kept them from the dying man.

The bodies of the Chenys were lifted forth one by one. Clayton, the father, his wife, two children and a brother were discovered When the crash came the aged father was pinned under seats He was terribly crushed, but life survived and the aged Cheny, conscious and suffering, could be heard calling for help.

Albert Seeds, of Louisville, had a remarkable escape when he was thrown from the window of a passenger car and landed safely on a pile of underbrush.

"I was awake," said Seeds, "and had just put on my overcoat, as it was getting chilly, when suddenly I heard a crash and before I knew what had happened, I was sitting alongside the wrecked train.

Helps Rescue Victims.

"I could hear men, women and children crying for help and, with the assistance of another young man, I got an axe from one of the rear coaches and cut a hole in the side of the car. A number of firemen reached the place a few minutes later. They went to work making the hole larger and pulled several bodies from the car."

The sound of a terrific explosion, followed by a flash of light that startled the sleepers in the nearby houses, brought them from their beds.

Mrs. Joseph Seiter, whose home is within a few rods of the wreck, described it as follows:

"A deep, terrific rumble, which shook our house, was the first thing we heard A big flash of light seemed to make everything outside as bright as day. Rushing out, we could see railroad men running back and forth with their lanterns and we ran over to the wreck. The people inside the passenger cars, who were still alive, were calling frantically for water.

"It made our hearts bleed to hear them, but we could do nothing for them until a hole was cut in the top of the car. My husband got up on top of the car and helped take out the dead and dying. One of the first bodies taken out was that of a little girl with her head crushed. It was terrible.

"My husband said he could see the old conductor, standing upright in the car, just as though he was collecting tickets. He was dead, but looked natural. He had his glasses on, and they were not even broken."

List May Reach Twenty.

At ten o'clock Dr. McGauhey, in charge of the physicians on duty at the wreck, declared that he thought twenty was a conservative estimate of the number of persons killed in the wreck. Ten persons were killed in the smoker alone, it was stated

From the pockets of one of the unidentified dead a notbook was found, containing the names of C. F. Grunhoefer, Winton Place, Cincinnati, and Charles F. Spangenberry, No. 590 Sixty-Seventh street, Milwaukee.

Horrors multiplied with the roll of dead and injured. With seventeen dead and twenty-eight injured late in the forenoon, the rescuers were still fighting frantically to get other victims who were imprisoned in the wreckage

Shortly before noon the men working on the wreckage came upon a grewsome sight. It was the dead hand of either William Sharkey, engineer of the passenger train or C Berg, his fireman, thrust out the window of the cab. It is probable that Sharkey died with his hand on the throttle, his faithful assistant at his side.

While Carl Gross, the head brakeman of the freight train, lies at his home, No. 142 south Oriental street, with a broken leg, bemoaning the mistake that brought on manifold tragedy, Superintendent White of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton, declares his investigation places the responsibility upon Gross without any doubt Gross declared, when he became conscious, that the switch was left open by one of his men, but he also said the passenger train got the signal that the track was clear

The Brakeman's Story.

Carl Gross, Indianapolis, head brakeman on the ill-fated freight train, said, before being taken to the operating room in Deaconess hospital, where the broken bones of his right leg were set and the injuries to his right arm were dressed

"We doubled over the hill and I was braking ahead. I was to flag No. 36—the passenger train. Then the engineer whistled me in and I thought we were in the clear and the switch was closed It was my duty to close the switch, but I could not do both and I thought that they had closed it when the engineer whistled me in The switch light was not lighted and I supposed they had taken care of the switch I was in the engineer's seat when the crash came.

"The passenger must have been going forty-five miles an hour I don't see how it took the switch, I could not realize that it had started to take the switch when it hit us and that was about all I knew."

Sister Fears Accident.

Indianapolis, Nov. 13.—A letter written by Florence Gross of San Francisco, to her brother, Carl Gross, head brakeman on the ill-fated freight train, was received yesterday, and told of a premonition of impending danger Florence Gross wrote:

"Dear Carl—I am sending you a necktie for a birthday present. I can't send you anything expensive, as I am saving my money to come to Indianapolis when you are injured or killed You must quit the road or it will surely come, and I am sure will come very soon."

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Kleinmaier of south State street are the parents of a son, born Tuesday afternoon.

AUTOMOBILE HITS SCRAPER IN DARK

William Hoover and Party Caught in Accident.

William Hoover had his five-passenger Maxwell automobile badly damaged, Tuesday evening, when he ran into a road scraper belonging to the city, at the corner of Silver street and Kenton avenue

Hoover was returning to the city with a party of friends who had been attending a party at the home of Miss Katherine Francis of Kenton avenue, and was driving the car at a moderate rate when his machine struck the scraper, which was standing along the side of the street. The windshield was broken and the engine badly damaged The young people were compelled to walk home No one was injured.

The street was dark, there were no lights on the scraper and Hoover did not see it until too late to turn aside.

FORCIBLE DETENTION SUIT CARRIED HIGHER

Matter of William Smith Against Mrs. W. T. Smith.

DEFENDANT WIDOW OF LATE REPRESENTATIVE

Plaintiff Seeks To Oust Daughter-in-Law from House on Blaine Avenue—Mrs. George B. Carey Begins an Action for a Divorce and Custody of Child.

A forcible detention suit of wide interest was brought to the attention of Judge William E Scofield, in the court of common pleas, Wednesday, when Attorney William P. Moloney got the court's permission to file a petition in error. The defendant, represented by Attorney Moloney, is Mrs Nora Smith, wife of the late Representative William T. Smith, and the plaintiff is William Smith, the aged father of the dead representative.

The suit originated in the court of Justice W. H. Harrington at Caledonia and was begun by the plaintiff last September, in an effort to oust Nora Smith, the widow of William T. Smith, from the possession of one side of a double house located at No. 127 Blaine avenue. Mrs Smith, at the hearing before Justice Harrington, at Caledonia, testified that the double house was built by her husband and his father with the understanding that her husband was to have one side and the "old folks" the other side. For more than ten years the two families occupied the house, or until Mr. Smith's death Following his death, Mrs. Smith testified that the elder Mr. Smith informed her that the north side of the house belonged to her and the other side to his own children. Later, however, he brought an action in forcible detention to gain possession of the entire property, and showed that there was a mortgage of $3,000 on it in his name. Justice Harrington decided the case in favor of the aged Mr Smith and against the daughter-in-law, and the latter now seeks to prosecute error to the common pleas court Judge Scofield announced that he would hear the case on its merits next Friday.

The local justices did not care to have the action started in their courts, and Carhart & Warner, who represented the plaintiff, then instituted it at Caledonia.

Wednesday, Judge William E. Scofield granted a decree of divorce to William G. Smith, an employe of the Marion Steam Shovel company, who charged his wife, Sarah Ella Smith, with immorality He told the court that his wife ran away with another man last May. He was represented by Attorney John D. DeGolley.

Wednesday, in the court of common pleas, Maud Carey through Conley & Johnson, brought an action for a divorce from George B Carey. She charged extreme cruelty and habitual drunkenness. She asks custody of their one child

In the appeal suit of Frank Dixon against Gertrude Matthews, leave has been granted the plaintiff to reply instanter.

Leave to the defendant to plead by November 30, has been granted in the suit of Christian Benzler against Sarah Benzler.

In February, 1911, Emma Lenora Weirick, a daughter of the late Mary J. Bonner, brought an action, through Leuthold, McCarron & Leuthold, of Bucyrus, to partition 179 acres in Bowling Green township John W. Robinson and other heirs were named as defendants.

Rev. J. A. Sutton, of LaRue, executor of the last will and testament of Mrs. Bonner, through Mouser & Moloney, demurred to the partitioning of the estate, claiming that, under the will, the plaintiff had no right to ask that partition be made. Later the executor filed a cross-petition asking that the land described in the petition be sold to pay the legacies of the will and the debts, providing, however, that the five heirs could not agree. Three of the heirs filed pleadings objecting, and Judge Scofield finally issued an order of sale to the executor. The land was sold to J. W. Mawrey, Alfred Jones and Charles Adams for $12,000.

After the sale was made the question arose as to the claim of Mrs. Emma Smith for rentals on fifty acres of the land, which had been decreed to her by the circuit court as dower as the divorced wife of Marion Bonner, son of Mary J. Bonner. Today, Judge Scofield decided that she was not entitled to any rentals nor any other of the heirs, but that all rentals should be taken by the executor and applied in payment of the debts.

Mrs. Smith, Marion Bonner's divorced wife, now lives in Indianapolis. At the time the land was decreed to her by the circuit court she was a resident of Smith's Grove, Warren county, Kentucky. She was represented in court by Attorney Louis E. Myers, while Attorney Homer E. Johnson represented Robert B. Bonner, the widower of Mary J. Bonner. Crissinger & Guthery represented the defendants aside from the executor.

Oswald Wollenweber, who was appointed receiver for the Marion Woodworking company, has furnished $3,000 bond to Clerk W. W. Klinefelter. This amount was fixed by the court.

Josephine Yeager, one of the defendants in the suit of Sebastian Keil against Elizabeth Keil and others, has filed an election to take the land described in the petition for $8,000, its appraised value. As a daughter of Michael Keil, she sets up the fact that she is entitled to a one-sixth interest.

In the partition suit of Frank Riley against Almeda E. Rhoades and others, George T. Geran has been appointed guardian ad litem for the minor defendants, with leave to answer instanter. Judge W. E. Scofield at the same time found for the parties in accordance with the prayer of the petition, and ordered a writ of partition returnable forthwith. Charles Uncapher, John Hogan and John W. Lust were appointed commissioners.

DeGolley & DeGolley, representing Joseph Martin, who is now serving a term in the Dayton workhouse for larceny, have filed a motion in the court of common pleas to have his trial for burglary and larceny set down at this term of court. The attorneys say their client wants a speedy trial. Martin will not be released from the workhouse until next March, if he serves out his fine of $200 and thirty days' sentence. He also wants a speedy trial on his indictment for forcing an entrance into Drs. A. and H. S. Rhu's safe. Frank Phillips, Martin's alleged pal, is now serving a seven-year term in the Ohio penitentiary for burglary.

Attorney Charles W. Faulkner, of Kenton, was here, Tuesday to attend the hearing of the civil action of the Cantwell Hardware company against Oscar Lusch. This is a suit in which the Cantwell Hardware company, a Kenton concern, is seeking to recover a judgment against Lusch, who is the trustee-in-bankruptcy for H H Kelly The plaintiff company claims that Kelly signed over to it a part of his homestead claim and Lusch was made defendant to recover on this assignment. Attorney Faulkner represented Kelly; C. L. Justice, Crissinger & Guthery the plaintiff and Hoke W. Donithen the defendant. Judge Scofield reserved his decision.

A SUIT IS SETTLED OUTSIDE OF COURT

Bryan Brothers & Company Against Baughman.

Wednesday, the suit of Bryan Brothers & Company against George T Baughman and others was settled out of court. The cause was assigned for trial Thursday. It was an action to recover judgment against the trustees of a church near Agosta for painting At the same time it was announced that one of the main witnesses in the trial of the suit of Rice against Shumaker and others, a ditch case, was out of town, and would be unable to appear at the trial, set for Friday. It was taken out of the assignment by Judge Scofield, who notified Clerk W. W Klinefelter to excuse the petit jurors until Monday, when George England will be tried for wronging his own daughter.

Bears the Expense.

It is not generally known that the Ohio & Western Lime company always pays the burial expenses of employes meeting death when in its employment The company's officials deeply regret the tragic death of employes As is customary, the burial expenses of George Rodolfo, who was killed by a dynamite expplosion at one of the local quarries, were paid by the Ohio & Western corporation The young foreigner's funeral was held Monday.

BLAMES OTHERS FOR THE CRIME

"Gyp the Blood" Exonerates Himself and Friends.

TELLS STORY OF ACTUAL SHOOTING

Mentions "Stranger" Often in Course of Testimony.

Harry Horowitz, One of the Four Accused Gun Men, Tells the Jury About His Movements on the Night Herman Rosenthal Is Shot Down by Assassins in Front of the Hotel Metropole.

New York, Nov. 14.—Boyish and well dressed and looking far from the murdering outlaw he has been pictured, Harry Horowitz, alias "Gyp the Blood," took the witness stand today as the first witness of the defense in the trial of the gun men accused of assassinating Herman Rosenthal.

The spectators, among whom were many well-known society women, gazed in wonder at the boyish witness who had been painted in blackest colors by the prosecution.

One point in Gyp's story stood out against the blackness of the whole narrative. In the afternoon of July 15 he said Louis Rosenberg or "Lefty Louie," heard that his mother was ill and hastened off to a drug store to inquire after her condition and see whether he was wanted at home. At that time, the state charges, the four gangsters were waiting for a chance to shoot Rosenthal down in cold blood.

In answer to Attorney Wahle's questions, Horowitz said he was twenty-four years old, and entered into a detailed statement of his movements on July 15, the day before the murder.

Meet in Saloon.

Horowitz swore that he and Frank Muller of "Whitey Lewis," went to a saloon on Second avenue about 10 o'clock on the night of July 15 and were later joined there by "Lefty Louie." They stayed there until midnight. Then they went to Louis Webber's poker room at Sixth avenue and Forty-Second street, where they met Frank Cirofici or "Dago Frank" the fourth gun man. Sam Schepps, Harry Vallon, Jack Rose and a strange man were all there, "Gyp" said.

Soon Rose, Webber, Vallon, Schepps and the stranger went out, but in fifteen minutes the stranger returned. "Dago Frank" then left for home, "Gyp" said, but he, Rosenberg and Muller went with the stranger toward the Metropole hotel, two blocks away.

Then followed Horowitz's story of the actual shooting, in which he exonerated himself and his friends, placing the guilt on others.

"We stopped in front of the Metropole. Rose, Vallon, Webber and Schepps started to cross the street. The stranger joined them and we started across to meet them half way.

The Actual Shooting.

"All of a sudden, just as they were opposite the doorway of the Metropole hotel, the stranger turned. There was a flash and a shot and I saw Vallon and Webber shooting at a figure. The stranger joined the shooting. We were frightened and ran towards the subway station.

"We got into an uptown train and rode to our apartment in Seventh avenue. 'Dago Frank' was there when we arrived. Neither myself nor any of my three companions carried weapons. I did not know until half past eight the next morning that any one had been killed."

Horowitz said he did not know Rosenthal. "Rose never asked me to kill Rosenthal and me and my friends never said 'we are ready to do the job tonight,' said the witness with vehemence."

District Attorney Moss then began cross-examination, bringing out the fact that he has been convicted of crimes five times.

While V. F. Schrote and Mr. Wright, a traveling salesman, were returning from Marion, Thursday, their automobile skidded and struck the side of the Scioto river bridge, throwing Mr. Wright through the windshield and cutting him severely on the head and face. The machine was badly damaged.

REACH COMPROMISE ON STATUE TROUBLE

Kentucky Women Will Have Jeff Davis Bigger Than Lincoln.

Washington, Nov 14—After several executive sessions with the general officers of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, members of the Kentucky delegation have reached a compromise on their proposition to remove the statue of Abraham Lincoln from the state capitol at Frankfort and replace it with one of Jefferson Davis, president of the confederacy. A member of the delegation said today:

"Of course we would rather replace the Lincoln statue, but there is nothing to prevent us ordering a statue of Jefferson Davis, which will be a few inches higher than the Lincoln memorial."

Mrs. Alexander White, of Paris, Tennessee, the present president general, is a candidate for re-election. But she is at the bedside of her dying husband and the cohorts of Mrs. Livingston Schuyler, of New York, have taken advantage of Mrs. White's adbense to press the candidacy of the New York woman.

CHARLES EDWARDS IS SENT TO PENITENTIARY

Must Serve Two Years for Burglary and Larceny.

EDWARDS ASKS COURT TO EXTEND LENIENCY

Redmond Lawrence Is Given a Jail Sentence of Thirty Days—The Appeal Matter of Dixon Against Matthews—Notes from the Common Pleas Court.

Charles Edwards, convicted of burglary and larceny in breaking into the West Marion barber shop of C. C. Brown and stealing barber tools, was sentenced to serve two years in the Ohio penitentiary by Judge William E. Scofield, Thursday morning.

Asked if he had anything to say, the usual question put to all prisoners before passing sentence, Edwards replied that his attorney, John C. McNally, would say all he wanted to say for him. Attorney McNally then told of the prisoner's poor old gray-haired mother, etc., and asked the court's leniency. Judge Scofield reviewed the history of the case and the young man's record, saying he could not send him to the reformatory, because he had already served a term there and that the court, under the law, would have to give a penitentiary sentence. After some fatherly advice, the judge pronounced sentence.

With tears streaming down his cheeks, Edwards arose and thanked the court. "It was drink, judge; it was drink," he murmured.

Redmond Lawrence, who is in the county jail about one-half of his time, was arraigned for sentence on his conviction for petit larceny. He had nothing to say why sentence should not be passed and the judge gave him thirty days in jail.

In the appeal matter of Frank Dixon against Bert and Gertrude Matthews, a jury was waived and the cause submitted to Judge William E. Scofield on the evidence, late Wednesday afternoon. He found for the defendants and held that there was due them from the plaintiff the sum of $3.46. This is a suit on a labor claim appealed from the court of former Justice Charles H. Conley, and is one of the numerous small actions that tend to clog the common pleas court docket, which now contains over 300 cases.

Dixon sued to recover $5.65 in the justice's court. In the defendant's answer she countered with an unpaid grocery bill of $3.46 and credits showing the plaintiff's claim had been paid in the purchase of groceries by him.

In the suit to quiet title of Henry Burbaugh against Joseph Mapes and others, the defendant has been found in default for answer or demurrer. Judge Scofield entered a decree quieting title to the real estate consisting of thirty-seven acres in Montgomery township. Attorney John H. Clark represented the plaintiff.

The divorce case of Edgar W. Earl against Addie May Earl, has been set down for hearing before Judge William E. Scofield, Saturday morning. Thursday, Mouser & Moloney, representing the defendant, withdrew her answer and cross-petition, and Judge Scofield allowed her $50 temporary alimony as agreed by the couple. The plaintiff's action for a decree of divorce will not now be contested.

Wednesday afternoon, Judge Scofield appointed Lloyd P. DeGolley to assist his father, John D. DeGolley, in defending William DeHaven, indicted for the murder of Simeon Glathart, Claridon township farmer. DeHaven's trial will begin Monday, December 2. Mouser & Moloney have been retained to assist Prosecuting Attorney Charles L. Justice in DeHaven's prosecution.

PROCLAMATION SENT THROUGHOUT WORLD

Notice of Panama Canal Rates Given to All Governments.

Washington, Nov. 14.—Secretary of State Knox submitted to all the governments of the world copies of President Taft's proclamation, fixing Panama canal tolls. The proclamation was accompanied by a note, calling attention to an issuance of schedule of rates.

It is not anticipated that Great Britain will enter formal protest against these tolls for at least a month, and it may be she will defer any protest regarding the alleged discrimination against foreign ships until after March 4, 1913.

No intimation of protests from other foreign governments has been received at the state department.

WITNESS FAINTS WHILE ON STAND

Girl Given Merciless Gruelling in the Tarring Trial.

REFUSES TO ANSWER LAWYYER'S QUESTIONS

Admits Sweetheart Says "the Boys Were Masked."

Miss Bertha Grannamon Carried from Court-Room in Unconscious Condition During Trial Brought About by Tarring of Minnie La Valley. Mrs. Alice Welsh Defends Her Son, Accused of Being in Crowd.

Norwalk, O., Nov. 14.—Bertha Grannamon, called as witness in the defense of Ernest Welsh, on trial for alleged participation in the tarring of Minnie La Valley, fainted today and was carried unconscious from the court-room.

The girl refused to answer questions asked her by Prosecutor Young and was subjected to a merciless gruelling. The girl admitted telling the grand jury that Welsh, her sweetheart, had said to her in speaking of the La Valley case that "the boys were all masked."

Miss Grannamon declared she did not remember that Welsh had told her anything of his whereabouts on the night of the attack on Miss La Valley.

When court reconvened at 1:15 this afternoon, the jury was excused till Friday morning, when arguments will be made by lawyers.

Defends Her Son.

Norwalk, O., Nov. 14.—Mrs. Alice Welsh resumed the stand in the La Valley tarring trial here today. She is the mother of Ernest Welsh, defendant, and first of six accused West Clarksfield men tried. She reiterated the story told late yesterday afternoon that her son was at home through the entire evening of August 30, when the tarring took place.

Frank Russell, former West Clarksfield school teacher; Edwin Tucker and John Hancammery, of West Clarksfield, testified that Minnie La Valley's reputation for veracity was bad.

Maurice Welsh, fourteen, cousin of the defendant, and Henry Graffice, seventeen, testified they were at the Welsh home on the night of the tarring and that the defendant did not leave home during the evening. The defense rested at 10:30 a. m.

The prosecution recalled witnesses for further examination.

SHERIFF IS CALLED TO PROTECT WOMAN

Man Quiets Down and No Arrest Is Made.

Wednesday night about 10 o'clock, Sheriff John G. Stark received a hurry call from Cottage street. A woman's voice over the telephone said that a man was in her house and threatened to kill her. She told the sheriff to hurry to the rescue.

When the officer reached the Cottage street house described, he was informed by the woman who came to the door that the man had gone to sleep in the barn. "He's my brother and he's quieted down, so I don't want him arrested," she said.

"All right," said the sheriff; "then the next time he gets unruly you can take care of him yourself." He was indignant at the woman, who refused to tell her name.

BAD BOYS MUST PAY PENALTY FOR ACTIONS

Juvenile Judge Is Determined To Break Up Gangs.

FREMONT LAYMAN WILL BE SENT AWAY

Judge Finds the Lad Will Probably Do Better in the Industrial School at Lancaster Than at Home. Boy's Father Wishes Him Sent to Lancaster.

Juvenile Judge William S. Spencer is determined to break up gangs of bad boys. Thursday morning, he announced that he was going to start by sending to the state's industrial school at Lancaster fifteen-year-old Fremont Layman, son of Grimes Layman. The Layman lad has given the juvenile court officers much trouble. Last July he was given a probationary sentence to the Lancaster industrial school.

For some time past, revolvers have been stolen from the Haberman Hardware company's store. Two of the six stolen revolvers were traced directly to the Layman boy. Tuesday afternoon, he was brought into court, together with several other lads who have been "toting" guns.

During the examination the Layman boy's father slept most of the time, according to the juvenile authorities. He wanted his son sent away, he said, because he could do nothing with him. After long observation, Judge Spencer concluded it would be the best thing for the youngster to send him to Lancaster. The other boys were lectured and released with the admonition that they will be summarily dealt with if they are again brought into the juvenile court.

Only two or three of the stolen revolvers, valued from $12 to $15 apiece, were recovered.

Thursday, Judge Spencer explained that the police should join in cooperation with his court to suppress bad boys.

THE PREMIER OF SPAIN IS KILLED

Senor Canalejas Shot Down by an Anarchist.

ASSASSIN TURNS THE WEAPON ON HIMSELF

Intense Excitement Follows the Assassination.

"Spain's Strongest Man" Is Taken Away, as He Stands on Steps of Home Office in Madrid—Two Shots Are Fired—Killing Believed To Be Outcome of Execution of Radical Writer a Year Ago.

Madrid, Nov. 12.—Premier Canalejas was assassinated by an anarchist today. The premier was shot to death as he stood upon the steps of the home office. The assailant, who subsequently committed suicide, was identified as Manuel Pardinas, Zerrate, a dangerous radical, who has been under police surveillance.

News of the assassination spread throughout the city and created intence excitement. When King Alfonso heard of it, he is said to have wept.

The anarchist, who had evidently been waiting for some time to get a chance to fire upon the premier, rushed forward as though to address a petition to the official when he appeared on the steps of the home office. Because of the dangerous state of political unrest in Spain, the premier had been warned repeatedly to retain a guard about his person, but Senor Canalejas paid no attention to this injunction and frequently went about unattended. Canalejas had received a number of threats.

The Police Theory.

The police believe the assassination is a direct outcome of the execution of Professor Ferrera, the Republican, who was condemned and put to death for his radical writings about a year and a half ago.

Zerrate shot himself with the same revolver that had taken the life of Senor Canalejas. The assassination was witnessed by a number of persons, but happened so quickly that they could give no aid.

As the anarchist sprang toward Canalejas, he pulled a handkerchief from his pocket in which was concealed a revolver. At the instant, Canalejas slightly turned his head. Zerrate, taking quick aim, fired and the bullet struck the premier behind the right ear.

A second shot was fired, which also struck him in the head. As several soldiers, who stood beside the door of the home office, sprang forward, Zerrate turned the revolver against his heart and pulled the trigger.

The two bodies fell within a few feet of each other. Medical aid was at once summoned and soldiers were brought from the barracks to prevent the escape of any accomplices who might be nearby.

First Shot Is Fatal.

Although the physicians arrived in a few minutes, Premier Canalejas was dead. In his hand he clasped some papers which he had been carrying when shot. The first shot had apparently been fatal.

The body of the slain government official was carried into the home office, where it remained until removed to the official residence.

Those nearest the scene of the shooting declared that, as Zerrate fired the second shot at the premier, he cried:

"Thus I avenge my master."

When this information was given to the police, it strengthened their belief that the execution of Professor Ferrera had so preyed upon the anarchist's mind that he decided to take vengeance into his own hands.

Investigation of the man's antecedents are being made. The quarters in which he was living were raided and a number of arrests were made.

News that the premier had been slain were received with profound regret except among the radicals. In court circles the expression heard on every hand was:

"Spain's strongest man is dead."

Canalejas' Career.

Madrid, Nov. 12—Premier Canalejas was sixty-two years old and, during the latter years of his life, was practically the ruler of Spain. He guided Alfonso through more than one national crisis and when his political opponents were crying for his resignation, the king would not let him go.

Senor Jose Canalejas, to give his full name, was appointed premier in 1905 and his reign has been a stormy one. Through all that time he has had to deal with an ever-growing revolutionary situation. Canalejas started out in life as a lawyer and so marked was his preeminence that at eighteen he was delivering lectures of national fame in Madrid. He was a facile speaker, a student and a diplomat, but he had been in public life since he had attained his majority, until the question of the separation of church and state became acute. Twelve years ago he amazed the country by his declaration:

"We must wage war on clericalism."

Made Many Enemies.

In politics, Canalejas was an advanced Liberal and he had a big following, but he was so decisive that he made many bitter enemies.

At nineteen he addressed political meetings; at twenty-five he was sent to parliament and from that time he rose steadily in a country where intrigue dominates politics and cunning is considered by many as a virtue.

Senor Canalejas held a number of government posts. He was minister of finance in one cabinet and minister of justice in another. For a long time King Alfonso considered him a dangerous fanatic and he was persona non grata at the royal palace. Later the king completely changed his opinion.

When Professor Ferrera was arrested and condemned to death, only the strong hand of Canalejas prevented an anarchist uprising.

EXPENSE ACCOUNTS OF THE CANDIDATES

What It Costs To Race for Various Official Places.

Following Pearl R. Mears, successful candidate for county surveyor, who was the first under the wire with his expense account, other candidates came rolling in with their reports to teh board of elections Tuesday. Among them were County Auditor Jay Spaulding, reelected, who was assessed $75 by the Republican committee, and in addition expended $60.55. County Commissioner J. K. Leeper expended $177.75, the greater part of which was his campaign assessment. Homer E. Johnson, Democrat, elected prosecuting attorney, spent $188.47, $100 of which was for his campaign assessment.

John J. Stafford, recorder-elect, spent $167.85. Of this amount he paid an assessment of $100 to the Democratic committee.

MUCH INTEREST SHOWN IN CASE AT PROSPECT

Proceeding of School Board Against H. H. Smith.

JUSTICE NOAH GAST RESERVES A DECISION

A Commission of Physicians Is Appointed To Examine Little LaVon Smith and Report as to Physical Condition and Ability To Attend the Village Public Schools.

After hearing all the testimony in the Prospect school board's suit to compel Homer H. Smith, manager of the Prospect Telephone company, to send to school his thirteen-year-old daughter, LaVon, Justice Noah Gast, of Prospect, Monday night, reserved his decision. He announced that he would appoint a commission of physicians to examine into the girl's physical condition. This commission is composed of Drs. R. H. Finefrock and A. L. Gast, of Prospect, and N. F. Tilton, of Marion. Justice Gast will announce his decision, Monday, November 18.

Wide interest has been aroused in this case, and the town hall at Prospect was packed to the doors at Monday night's hearing. It had been planned to hold it in the grocery store of the justice, but this was too small and it was decided to procure the town hall.

Mr. Smith, father of the girl, the testimony showed, wanted the school superintendent to drop two of her studies. She is a member of the seventh grade. This the superintendent refused to do. Not long afterward the Smith girl quit school entirely. When an effort was made to compel her attendance through the truant officer, the father rebelled. He claimed that his daughter's physical condition would not permit of her school attendance and the keeping up of the number of studies of the grade. Then the truant officer, following the school board's directions, caused Smith's arrest and employed Attorney George B. Scofield to prosecute him. Smith demanded a trial and employed as his counsel Mouser & Moloney.

The evidence adduced also showed that, although Mr. Smith failed to send his little daughter to school, he sent her on the interurban once every week to Delaware to take music lessons. By this the school board sought to prove that she was able to attend the Prospect schools.

As usual in small towns, practically the entire population is divided in its sentiment, and the finding of the commission, on which will hinge Justice Gast's decision, will be awaited with deep interest by the villagers.

JOHN SCHRANK PLEADS GUILTY

Would-Be Assassin of Colonel Roosevelt

SAYS HE DOES NOT INTEND TO MURDER

Plea Not Accepted Till Sanity Is Proven.

The Proceedings in Milwaukee Court Merely Perfunctory and Schrank Makes a Statement to Judge, Saying He Wants To Warn Roosevelt. Man's Sanity Is Questioned—An Investigation Being Made.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 12—John Schrank, who attempted the assassination of Theodore Roosevelt on the night of October 14 here, today pleaded guilty to a charge of attempted murder. The hearing was held before Judge Backus. The judge refused to accept the plea before he heard a report on the man's sanity. Court was adjourned until 2 p. m. in order that the examination might be made.

That the trial would be a mere formality, save for the appointment of a commission to test Schrank's sanity, was the statement of District Attorney Zabel before the hearing opened.

"I am convinced that Schrank is a paranoiac," said Zabel. "In my talks with him, his evident self satisfaction with his deeds, and the complaisance with which he regards his ultimate fate leaves no doubt in my mind as to his lack of sanity."

Proceedings Perfunctory.

The proceedings were perfunctory. They lasted about ten minutes. Schrank as led before District Judge Backus and the charge was read to him. He was asked to stand up.

"John Schrank," said the judge, "you are charged with assault with intent to kill Theodore Roosevelt. Are you guilty or not guilty?"

"I wish to plead guilty," the prisoner replied. "In explanation, I wish to say that I did not mean to kill Mr. Roosevelt, but merely to wound him. I shot him as a warning that two terms of president were enough. I was not trying to hurt the candidate of a third party for, as I believe, a third party has a right to enter the field.

"I shot to warn citizen Roosevelt that two terms as president were enough and to force him to desist from his attempt to seize an honor never before granted an American citizen. That is all your honor."

Schrank spoke as a man who had carefully written out what he had to say and memorized it.

Asks for Adjournment.

District Attorney Zabel rose after Schrank had concluded.

"Your honor," Zabel said, "the district attorney believes this man to be a paranoiac and would not be a party to sending a man needing mental treatment to state prison. I therefore submit that the state wishes to appoint a commission of medical experts to decide the matter of the defendant's sanity before proceeding further. I threfore ask for an adjournment."

Court was then adjourned until 2 p. m. The court announced that it would, at that time, name a commission of five alienists to examine Schrank. It is expected the examination will last for two days.

Schrank was the least interested man in the court-room as the hearing began. He was carefully dressed. He was heavily guarded as he was taken to the court-room, for fear a demonstrtion might be made against him.

A crowd of curious persons gathered at the court. Hundreds tried to force their way into the room, but were restrained by deputies.

POTATO CROP IN OHIO IS A RECORD BREAKER

Board of Agriculture Issues Statement on Crop Conditions.

Columbus, O., Nov. 12.—Assistant Secretary Fleming of the state board of agriculture predicted a drop in the price of potatoes as a result of the bumper crop this fall. His November report shows that 11,604,902 bushels of potatoes were grown in Ohio as against 8,000,000 in 1911. The condition of the corn crop is 10 per cent better than that last year, and a much larger area was planted in corn than in 1911. The spring wheat prospect is bad. Only 1,669,656 acres of winter wheat have been sown.

Bonds Are Filed.

Tuesday afternoon, Attorney J. H. Clark, representing the pike commissioners of the Bethlehem free turnpike, filed the pike bonds, amounting to $17,000 to be registered by County Auditor Jay Spaulding.

FIVE LOSE LIVES IN AN EXPLOSION

Dynamite Plant Is Blown Up Near Gary, Indiana.

ACCIDENT OCCURS IN PACKING DEPARTMENT

Panic Follows Blast, Which Is Felt Many Miles.

It Is Believed the Explosive Becomes Clogged in the Machine Which Packs It in Cartridges and Is Set Off—Over 1,000 Pounds of Dynamite Are in the Plant, Ready To Be Packed.

Gary, Ind., Nov. 12.—Five men were killed today when dynamite destroyed the cartridge-packing building of the Aetna powder plant near Miller station, Indiana, three miles from here.

The Dead.

William Halpin, thirty, Blankville, Indiana, superintendent of packing department.

Oscar Carlson, Miller station, Indiana.

— Smith.

Two unidentified men.

Terrific Explosion.

Windows in the neighboring towns were shattered by the force of the explosion and the shock was felt for miles. The accident occurred in the machine-packing department, where dynamite was being loaded into cartridges. Physicians and surgeons were rushed to the scene from Gary.

Over 250 men were at work about the Aetna plant at the time of the explosion. Panic followed the blast and it was feared the concussion might caused further explosions. The dynamite was being packed into cartridges by a machine.

It is believed the explosive became clogged and that it was exploded by the force of the machine itself.

The building was totally wrecked. Bricks were ground to powder and, at the point where the packing machine had rested, a hole many feet deep was blown. It was reported that over 1,000 pounds of dynamite was in the structure, ready to be packed.

Halpin and three helpers had reported at the building ten minutes before the accident occurred.

NINETEEN LOSE LIVES IN WRECK

Excursion Train Telescoped by Fast Freight.

VICTIMS ARE CAUGHT IN BURNING DEBRIS

More Bodies Believed To Be in the Ruins.

The Wrecked Train Is Filled with Pleasure-Seekers, Returning from a Sunday Spent in New Orleans. Physicians Say Number of Injured Can Not Live—Most of the Dead Are Negroes.

New Orleans, Nov. 11.—Thirteen people were killed outright, six died later of injuries and forty-two others were injured in a wreck of an excursion train on the Yazoo & Mississippi Valley railroad near Montz, Louisiana, early today, when a freight train telescoped the excursion train which was returning home with pleasure-seekers who had spent Sunday in New Orleans.

Thirteen bodies are in the morgue here. Some of them are so badly mangled that sex or color can not be determined.

Three coaches of the train were overturned and caught fire. They were entirely consumed. The bodies of those taken out were burned beyond recognition. Rescue parties are searching the wreckage. It is believed a number of bodies are still buried under the shattered cars.

The injured were brought here on a special train. Several of them were so severely injured that physicians who made the first examination say they can not live.

Rear-End Collision.

The wrecked train was running from New Orleans to Woodville, Mississippi. It took the siding at midnight to permit a southbound train to pass. A northbound freight train, running at full speed, crashed into the excursion train just as it had come to a stop.

The heavy freight plowed its way through the rear car and sent three of the coaches over in a splintered heap. The wreckage caught fire from the engine. The shock splintered the forward cars, and passengers in them were severely hurt. Most of the deaths occurred in the rear coaches. Most of those in the rear cars were negroes. The cars were wooden affairs and were broken to bits by the shock. The train was crowded.

The flagman of the excursion train asserts that he went back the usual distance & set torpedoes and that he signalled the oncoming freight with his red lantern. The train flashed by, however, without heeding the warning.

Various estimates from the scene of the wreck place the number of dead as high as thirty. It is reported that more than fifty were injured. From the scene of the wreck, it was said some of the dead were whites.

Six Others Die.

Six of those injured in the wreck died immediately after reaching the Charity hospital here, bringing the total of known dead up to that time to nineteen.

About twenty of the injured are so seriously hurt that they will die. Among the dead are seven white persons. Five of those killed were babies and three women.

The wreck was due to a misunderstanding of orders by the crew of the freight train, which was running fifty miles an hour, when it crashed into the passenger train.

THE FINAL HEARING ON THE CHASE DITCH

Report of County Engineer Dwyer Is Accepted.

Tuesday, before the county commissioners, the final hearings on the proposed Chase ditch improvement was held. The report of County Engineer George E. Dwyer was accepted with a few minor changes. The date for the sale was fixed as November 23 at 10 o'clock in the office of the surveyor. The assessments are due and payable next June.

A $500 damage claim preesnted by Attorney Fred L. Carhart, counsel for the Big Four Railway company, was reduced to one dollar. The railway attorney gave notice of appeal. The Big Four claimed to have been damaged in the sum asked as a result of the lowering of the ditch level and thereby necessitating the changing of a bridge abutments two miles west of Agosta.

THOSE FAILING TO VOTE AT THE LAST ELECTION

Just 331 Registered Electors Fail To Appear at Polls.

NUMBER OF VOTERS IN THE COUNTY AND CITY

Electors Numbering 9,056 Register Their Preferences—The Official Canvass of the Vote Is Still in Progress—Much Time Required To Complete the Work.

Just 331 registered electors in Marion failed to vote at the general election, Tuesday, November 5.

Was the majority of these Republicans or Democrats? That was the question propounded at the office of the board of elections when this fact became known. The only way to find out is to make a search of all the registration books and thus learn who did not vote, and members of the election board announce that they will leave that to the more curious. However, if any of the Republican and Democratic central committeemen want to look it up, they are perfectly welcome to do so.

In the county, 9,056 voters registered their preferences in the election. Of this number, 4,936 lived in the city. The voters outside of Marion do not register. The total registration in Marion was 5,267.

Up to date, the official canvassers have gone over the state, judicial and county vote. They expect to get the work completed some time this week. They still have the numerous electors of the various tickets to canvass, and this is a big job.

Only a few big discrepancies were found in the unofficial count.

In the race for coroner, Dr. C. G. Smith, the defeated candidate, got 3,693 votes in the unofficial count, but the official gave him 3,786, a gain of ninety-three.

For clerk of the courts, the Democratic candidate's unofficial vote was 4,292 and his official is 4,297, while the Republican candidate's unofficial vote was 3,557 and his official vote was 3,619.

For commissioner, L. M. Thompson, Republican, received 4,091 unofficial and 4,165 official, making him second high in the race. J. K. Leeper, Democrat, led with an official vote of 4,500.

John E. Waddell has been appointed executor of the estate of the late Peter O. Sharpless. He will make an inventory and appraisement at the Sharpless home on east Center street, Tuesday morning, November 19.

MRS. ROSARIO MOLICA DRINKS CARBOLIC ACID

Would Rather Die Than Live with Man She Does Not Love.

YOUNG HUSBAND FINDS HER DEAD AT HOME

Unhappy Woman Is Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Nardini and She Claims She Is Forced into Union with Molica—Story of Marriage Leading to Suicide.

Mrs. Rosario Molica, twenty years old, American-born wife of an Italian Pennsylvania railroad laborer, and a September bride, committed suicide by draining an ounce vial of carbolic acid at her handsomely-furnished home on Avondale avenue, Wednesday afternoon. Her body, with arms folded across the breast, was found lying on the bed in an upstairs bedroom by the young husband when he returned home from work shortly after 5 o'clock.

Death, according to letters left by the unhappy bride, was sweeter than life as the wife of a man whom she did not love. She had loved another, an American, but her Italian parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Nardini, of Edwards street, desired that she wed Molica. She had first rebelled, but at last consented because, her relatives say, Molica threatened to kill her. Molica is twenty-seven years old and a rather nice looking Sicilian.

September 19, last, Miss Elizabeth G. Nardini, daughter of the Italian fruit merchant, accompanied by her parents and several other relatives, appeared in the probate court with Molica for a marriage license.

The girl looked unhappy, her unhappiness being so marked that it was noticeable and later commented on by others in the room at the time.

Marriage Delayed.

Not until seven days later were the young people married. Then, according to the dead bride's sister, Molica forced her to marry him by his threats of death.

Finally Rev. Father Joseph M. Denning, of St. Mary's church, performed the ceremony, and Molica took his bride to a newly-furnished home

Ever since the day of the marriage the bride had frequently expressed a desire to die and had made several attempts to end her life. Graphically, her sad story is told by a sister, who throws much light upon the causes leading to the tragedy, in addition to the information contained in the letters left behind by the suicide.

Mrs Molica visited the Gem Pharmacy on west Center street, Wednesday afternoon about 2:30 o'clock. She purchased a pint of turpentine and an ounce of carbolic acid. She said she was cleaning house and wanted both of them to use as disinfectants, and laughed and joked with the clerk.

Enroute to her home she stopped to talk with her sister, Mrs. Adolph Blanche, who lives in a flat just east of the Pennsylvania railroad. She told her sister that she had made several unsuccessful attempts to die, but that she was going to make sure of it this time. Mrs. Bianchi tried to dissuade her, but to no avail. When Mrs. Molica started for her home, however, Mrs Bianchi believed that she had convinced her sister all was not so hopeless.

Determined To Die.

But Mrs Molica had determined to die She went to her home, wrote two letters, one to her husband and one to her parents, and swallowed the deadly poison.

In one letter the poor little bride asked that she be buried in her black dress, with all her jewelry, and she named the different jewels.

The other letter revealed her unhappy story and why she wanted to die, substantially as stated.

After draining the vial she put it on a dresser and walked over to the bed, where she placed herself in the position an undertaker would lay out a corpse, and apparently died without a struggle.

Coroner W. H. Hinklin did not view the body until 9 o'clock Wednesday night.

Mrs Bianchi, the sister, whose husband conducts a candy store in West Marion, in the presence of Mrs. Gale Harraman, a neighbor, Thursday morning detailed the actions of the young bride previous to her rash act

Elizabeth Molica, called on her sister, Mrs. Bianchi, almost every day since her marriage and told of the abuse of her husband. The day previous to the girl's marriage she called at the Harraman home, and, in the presence of Mrs. Bianchi, stated that she had been forced to marry the man whom she did not love under the threat of her mother to kill herself. She also added that she would not live with him two months, and that her intended husband compelled her to accompany him for a license by drawing a revolver and threatening her life. She said that she was taking the step to keep her mother from carrying out the threat she had made and that if she did not feel satisfied she would kill herself.

Sisterly Advice.

With a sisterly love, Mrs. Bianchi tried to induce her sister to run away and enter a convent, and went so far as to offer to pay her expenses. The girl stated that she did not intend to have any shame cast on her by running away and continued to hint at suicide. Mrs. Harraman tried to dissuade her from such a thought. Mrs. Molica frequently told of the abuse she was subjected to and showed marks of violence which she said were due to beatings administered by her husband.

Tuesday afternoon, the girl called at the home of her sister, Mrs. Bianchi, and was assisting her in ironing. She again brought up the marriage and was relating how unhappy she was, and, in the presence of Mrs. Harraman, said that she had complained to her parents about her husband beating her and her mother said that she would have to stand it because he was her husband. The girl then related how she retired in her room, Monday, and turned on the gas, but after three hours she arose and felt better than when she closed herself in the room.

Fears Her Husband.

Mrs. Harraman and Mrs. Bianchi continued their pleadings with the girl not to take any rash step, but to evade her troubles by running away. The girl replied that her husband had frequently threatened to shoot her, and said that if she ever left he would follow her and kill her. According to Mrs. Bianchi and Mrs. Harraman, the girl was in constant fear of her husband. This is supposed to have caused her to take her life.

Mrs. Molica is survived by her parents, her husband and the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. Bianchi and Alivina, Anthoni, John, Adolphe, Joseph, Paul, Hazel, Gertrude and Francis Nardini.

The funeral services were held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Nardini on Edwards street, Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Father Denning officiating. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery.

REV. W. L. BEER HELD FOR AN INVESTIGATION

Wife Suffocated by False Teeth in Her Throat.

AN ACCIDENT WHEN HUSBAND CHOKES HER

Coroner's Jury Finds That Victim's False Teeth Are Accidentally Forced into Her Throat by Husband—Beers Is a Former Marion County Resident.

Rev. W. L. Beers, a Methodist minister and former resident of this county is in jail at Topeka, Kansas, pending an investigation as to the death of his wife When the minister was arrested, the evidence tended to show that Rev. Mr. Beers deliberately chocked his wife to death while quarreling with her in a hotel.

The coroner's jury, after examining a dozen witnesses, decided that the woman swallowed her false teeth and was suffocated by them, the teeth being forced into her throat while she was being choked. The evidence showed that the teeth were accidently forced into the woman's throat.

Rev. Mr. Beers formerly resided in Grand Prairie township and is quite well known throughout the city and county. Dison Beers, a brother, resides at the corner of east Center street and Seffner avenue, and owns a farm in Grand Prairie township.

The minister left Marion seven years ago. His second wife moved here from Nebraska and had nursed his first wife. When she died he married the nurse. From 1905 to 1907 he preached in the Methodist Episcopal church at New Washington. He moved to Kansas from that place. While he was preaching in the Methodist church in Kansas his second wife attended the Catholic church. In 1907 he moved back to Grand Prairie township. A year ago Beers deeded his property to his children when he and his wife again moved to Wakarusa, Kansas.

FIVE ECLIPSES DURING THE COMING YEAR

The Record for the Moon and Sun During 1913.

In the year 1913 there will be five eclipses, three of the sun and two of the moon. They are as follows:

March 22. Total eclipse of the moon. Visible more or less to North America, the western portions of South America, eastern and central Asia, Australia and the Pacific ocean. Occurring as follows: Moon enters shadow at 6:12 a. m., central standard time.

April 6. Partial eclipse of the sun. Visible to the northwestern portion of the United States, Alaska, the extreme eastern part of Siberia and the Arctic ocean.

JOHNNY FREISCH IS VERY BADLY INJURED

Is Run Down by Motorcyclist Who Is Speeding.

Johnny Treisch, the twelve-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Treisch, of No. 905 east Main street, Galion, is in a serious condition as a result of being run down by Arrville Winebigler who was speeding on his motorcycle, Tuesday evening. The Treisch boy was riding in a cart which was being shoved by some boy companions. Winebigler was returning from work and according to eye-witnesses was riding about forty miles an hour when he crashed into the cart containing the Treisch boy.

Winebigler was thrown from his machine and the motorcycle was badly damaged. The Treisch boy was picked up in an unconscious condition and carried to his home where Drs. Morgan and Brickley attended him. He was found to be suffering of a fracture of the skull two and a half inches long which extended from the base of the nose to the middle of the forehead, a fracture of the right leg just above the knee, a fracture of the right shoulder and two ribs. The lad did not regain consciousness until eight hours after the accident. The rider of the motorcycle escaped with a few bruises and scratches.

Alsike—12.95.

CHICAGO.

Chicago, Nov. 14—Wheat was ¼ to ⅝c lower this morning on further weakness at Liverpool, which was based on more favorable war conditions in the Far East and continued brilliant prospects in the Argentine. Northwestern receipts were greatly in excess of a year ago and up to the capacity of the railroads. There was no export demand to speak of and the cash situation here is dull.

Corn was ¼@⅜c lower, partially in sympathy with the further break at Liverpool, coupled with the pressure of Argentine offerings and favorable weather for finishing and harvesting the crop.

Oats were ¼@⅜c lower in sympathy with the other grains.

There was little change in hog products and hogs were steady at the yards.

Opening: Wheat—May, 95⅝ to ½; December, 38 to 37¾.

Corn—May, 48¾ to 48⅝; December, 49½ to ⅜.

Oats—May, 32½ to ⅛@⅜; December, 30½ to ¾.

Pork—May, 18.27; January, 18.65

Lard—May, 10.30; January, 10.-62 to 10.60.

Ribs—January, 10.07.

The following are the closing prices for the markets here:

Close: Wheat—May, 93⅛; July, 89½; December, 87½@⅝.

Corn—May, 48¼@⅜; July, 49@⅛; December, 48⅞.

Oats—May, 32¼@⅜; July, 32⅜; December, 30⅜.

Pork—May, 18.30; January, 18.-65.

Lard—January, 10.62; December, 10.92.

Ribs—May, 9.90@9.92; January, 10.12.
